Kennedy Is Nominated

Half Dozen Jockey For Veep Post

Senator Kennedy Expected To Select Own Running Mate

CONVENTION HALL, Los Angeles (AP)—Jockeying for the Democratic vice presidential nomination reached a peak Wednesday with half a dozen party leaders standing more or less available in the wings.

If Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts does the expected and wins the presidential nomination, he will choose his own running mate.

Kennedy's friends said he hasn't made up his mind yet and won't until he gets first prize in hand.

On this basis, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri appeared the most logical choice for the second spot. Symington says he isn't interested in it, and wants only the presidential nomination. But other men have said that in the past and changed their minds.

May Seek Johnson

If some of Kennedy's ablest strategists have their way, Kennedy in victory would urge Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas to come on the ticket with him.

Nobody close to Johnson thinks he would take it. He is running for re-election to the Senate and he has a leadership job in that body he has said carries more responsibilities than the vice presidency.

Johnson is in a position where he could run both for the vice presidency and the Senate if he chooses to do so.

Outside of presidential contenders Johnson and Symington, the vice presidential field was rather wide and somewhat eager.

Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, who placed Kennedy's name in nominaton, obviously thought this appearance might give him an inside track for second place.

Crowding on Freeman's heels were several other availables.

These included Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, a pal of Kennedy's, and Govs. Herschell C. Loveless of Iowa and George Docking of Kansas. There was some mention of Gov. Gaylord A. Nelson of Wisconsin.

Under Consideration

Kennedy was reported to have J. Leonard Reinsch, the convention manager, under consideration for the job.

Kennedy's choice of a running mate was expected to be influenced by several factors.

Most of his friends think he wants a Midwesterner who could appeal to the farm vote. Kennedy appears vulnerable in that sector because of Senate votes several years ago which favored the kind of programs advocated by GOP Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

Kennedy also may need some help with the South, angry with adoption of a party platform carrying the stiffest civil rights declaration the Democrats ever made.

89 Persons Aboard Crafts; 87 Are Saved

MANILA (AP) — Two airliners with 89 persons aboard ditched in Philippine waters Thursday. Most of the passengers and crews on both planes were reported saved.

Both planes apparently had mechanical trouble.

One was a Northwest Orient DC7C that went down about 85 miles east of Manila on a flight from Tokyo and Okinawa. An airline spokesman here said "there appear to be survivors" and other reports said 56 of 58 persons aboard had been picked up by rescue aircraft or were on life rafts in the shark-infested waters near Jomalig Island.

In Shallow Water

The second plane was a Philippine Airlines DC3 carrying 31 persons. The Philippines constabulary reported it crash-landed in shallow water off Mindanao Island in the southern Philippines and that all 27 passengers and 4 crewmen reached shore safely.

Rescue officials said a U.S. Coast Guard flying boat had landed at the scene of the Northwest ditching and soon airline officials said word had been received that 56 survivors were either in life rafts or aboard rescue aircraft.

Red Smoke Sighted

The airline said 44 passengers boarded the plane in Tokyo for Manila and seven more passengers got on at Okinawa. The plane carried a crew of seven.

Northwest said its plane was believed to have ditched off the north Philippines coast near Jomalig Island. The Navy said those waters are shark-infested.

The rescue center at Sangley Point Naval Station later said a rescue craft radioed it had sighted "red smoke signals, four life rafts and what looked like several bodies on the water in the area where a DC7C is believed to have ditched."

Rescue officials said a U.S. Coast Guard flying boat landed alongside one of the rafts.

Then a short time later U.S. Navy officials at Sangley Point reported a DC3 of the Philippines Airlines (PAL) was down in the sea off the northwest coast of the Island of Mindanao, southernmost of the Philippines.

Sea Reported Calm

The weather was reported clear and the sea calm.

The Northwest plane was flying from Okinawa to Manila when it ran into trouble. It carried 51 passengers and a crew of seven.

An airline spokesman said the captain at 3:20 a.m. reported a runaway No. 2 propeller which he was unable to feather. An hour later, Northwest said, he reported fire on the wing and that he was preparing to ditch.

The plane apparently lost the propeller that caused the emergency. Radio contact was lost.

Wins Smashing Triumph On Initial Ballot

Mass. Senator Acclaimed Wildly; Receives 785 Votes

SPORTS ARENA, LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy won the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday night with a smashing first-ballot victory that will pit him against Vice President Richard M. Nixon in the November election.

The 43-year-old Massachusetts senator crushed the White House hopes of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai E. Stevenson with a spectacular national convention triumph that capped his long campaign for the Democrats top prize.

The outcome never was in doubt from the moment the roll call started. State after state threw its expected votes to Kennedy, who went into the convention with a huge bloc of delegates captured in the state primaries.

The stop-Kennedy movement got a temporary lift when Minnesota cast its 31 votes for Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey. A cheer went up from the anti-Kennedy forces who knew their only chance was to hold against Kennedy on the first ballot.

Missouri cast its 31 votes for Sen. Stuart Symington. There was another cheer from the anti-Kennedy bloc when New Jersey announced its 41 votes for favorite son Gov. Robert B. Meyner.

But their joy was short lived as such big state delegations as New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio cast overwhelming votes for the New England senator.

The South stayed loyally with Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson.

But the clincher was provided by Wyoming without any end-of-ballot switches. The state cast all its votes for Kennedy as the huge convention hall exploded in a bedlam of yells.

With that the District of Columbia went for Kennedy.

The Puerto Rican delegate proudly announced his delegation's vote for "John F. Kennedy—the next president of the United States." The Virgin Islands followed suit.

At the end of the ballot the Kennedy steam roller had a total of 785 votes.

Then came the switches as the hold-out states rushed to get on the bandwagon.

Then convention Chairman LeRoy Collins recognized Gov. James T. Blair of Missouri who asked that the rules be suspended so Kennedy could be nominated unanimously.

Collins called for an "aye" vote and in the deafening uproar which followed declared the motion carried. He pronounced Kennedy the nominee of the party.

Johnson promptly issued a statement saying he accepted the convention's decision and would work for Kennedy's election with "all my heart."

Johnson, who battled to the last, urged the party to unite behind Kennedy and "sweep the country this November."

It was Gov. Orville L. Freeman of Minnesota, supplying another accent on youth, who put Kennedy in nomination—as a man of courage and drive, a man who will be "a great power for peace, for assurance and security."

Nixon Selects Two Possible Running Mates

WASHINGTON (AP)—In light of the tense international situation, Vice President Richard M. Nixon has two men with foreign policy experience at the top of his list of possible running mates.

Sources close to Nixon, the almost certain Republican presidential nominee, said Wednesday that his prime choice for the No. 2 spot is between U. N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and GOP National Chairman Thruston B. Morton, a former assistant secretary of state.

Three others getting honorable mention in the Nixon camp are Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson of Texas, Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton of Nebraska and Charles H. Percy, 40, Chicago business executive and GOP Platform Committee chairman.

With both President Eisenhower and Congress out of town, Nixon is working in the seclusion of his home in Washington's fashionable Wesley Heights. He is keeping an eye on the Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles.

The vice president canceled all formal appointments this week and stayed away from his office in order to give full time to mapping of campaign strategy in the seclusion of his den.

Nixon was said to feel that the critical international situation dictates that he select a running mate with a background of knowledge in the foreign field.

Russian "Spy Ship" Came To Chesapeake Bay

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy said Wednesday a Russian "spy ship" posing as a fishing vessel came within 12 miles of the entrance to Chesapeake Bay April 27 on a snooping expedition.

It was the same trawler that previously had been reported operating in an area off Long Island, N.Y., while the nuclear power Polaris missile submarine George Washington wss conducting exercises April 26.

The Navy hurriedly called newsmen into a closely-guarded section of its Pentagon headquarters and released full details of the Russian ship Vega's voyage down the U.S. East Coast April 26 and April 27.

The ship conducted a "close reconnaissance off the coast of the United States," Rear Adm. J. C. Kirkpatrick, Navy chief of information, said.

The Navy gave no official reason for the long delay and then the sudden disclosure of information about the Soviet spying expedition with a ship loaded with concealed radar and radio equipment.

But it seemed evident the Defense Department wanted a comparison drawn between the U.S. action and that of Russia in shooting down an American reconnaissance airplane north of the Kota Peninsula July 1 while flying—America contends—in international airspace.

Russia was engaged in "a perfectly legal method of collecting electronic intelligence," Kirkpatrick said, because its vessel stayed in international waters.

"We abide by international law," he said.

Paratroopers Grab Airport In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP)—Belgian paratroopers wrested the Leopoldville airport from Negro soldiers of the faltering new Congo government in a 48-minute skirmish Wednesday.

The breakdown of the authority of Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba's 13-day-old regime appeared almost complete.

Both Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu were out of town when the Belgian units opened their first armed action at this capital. The Congolese leaders—feuding with Brussels and some of their own followers—were not consulted by Belgian authorities.

At least one Congolese soldier was killed in the brisk exchange of gunfire and grenades for control of the airport.

The paratroopers freed about 200 white persons—men, women and children—who had been menaced by the guns of Congolese soldiers as they waited at the airport for planes to fly them out of this former Belgian colony.

Great relief among white residents at the intervention of the Belgian troopers was tempered by uncertainity over how much of the city they controlled. Downtown hotels, the railroad station and some other centers remained under guard of Negro soldiers.

Throngs of nervous whites, spurred by the airport clash—streamed across the Congo River by ferry to the safety of Brazzaville.

Illustrating the chaotic political situation, Kasavubu and Lumumba denounced a request by their government for military aid by an international force as a "Belgian colonialist plot." They telegraphed their view to the United Nations.

The United States rejected the idea quickly, saying it preferred that American help be channeled through the United Nations. Belgium, which has several thousand soldiers already on the ground by treaty, asked the U.N. for help—possibly military aid—in restoring order.

Lumumba's government had asked the U.N. Sunday for help.

But diplomatic sources said this request was only for administrators, not soldiers.

In Elisabethville, Katanga's capital Premier Moise Tshombe reiterated he is determined to withdraw his mineral-rich province from the Congo. He denied in an interview a report that he had changed his mind about secession, which he announced Sunday.

Ike Willing For UN Debate

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President Eisenhower declared Wednesday night the United States is ready and willing to go to the .UN. Security Council on what he termed the Soviet Union's "wanton shooting down" of an American reconnaissance plane.

The President issued a statement at the summer White House a few hours after Russia had demanded an emergency session of the Security Council on the plane incident. In doing so the Soviets accused the .US. Air Force of aggressive activities.

"The United States government," Eisenhower said, "is ready and willing to go to the Security Council for a full discussion of the Soviet's wanton shooting down of the United States Air Force RB47 plane in international waters July 1."

The President said that in the Security Council the United States "will focus attention on the lawless actions and reckless threats of the Soviet government."

Nike-Cajun Rocket Fizzles

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—A Nike-Cajun rocket carrying explosive charges fizzled Wednesday night and reached only about half the expected 90-mile altitude.

The explosive charges, expected to make white puffs of smoke visible along areas of the Middle Atlantic coast, failed to explode.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said cause of the failure was not immediately determined. The rocket reached only 90,000 feet (about 38 miles) despite the fact the second stage apparently fired on schedule, NASA said.

The launching was at 8:45 p.m. (EDT), shortly after darkness fell along the coast.

The Nike-Cajun rocket firing had no connection with Strongarm rocket tests resumed at Wallops Island Wednesday.

UN Summoned To Session On Congo Strife

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold summoned an extraordinary session of the Security Council Wednesday night to propose authorization of a U.N. military force to restore order and institute a training program in the strife-torn Congo.

Hammarskjold called the council into the unusual session in the face of an implied threat by Congolese leaders Patrice Lumumba and Joseph Kasavubu to go to Red China for military help if the United Nations did not act quickly.

The extraordinary session was called as Russia accused the United States of planning Western intervention in the Congo and announced it had asked the U.N. for immediate action to end "armed aggression" in the new African nation.

The Soviet statement by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko charged that the United States was "working out plans" to extend the intervention of the Western powers under the flag of the United Nations.

Gromyko handed the statement to the U.S. Charge d'Affaires in Moscow.

Diplomatic observers expected that Hammarskjold would seek a contingent similar to the U.N. emergency force now on duty on the Israeli - Egyptian border. It was expected that the force would be recruited, as far as possible, from French-speaking African countries. It was likely that some officers might be sent from the U.N. Palestine truce supervision organization to head the training program and there was talk of naming an overall Swedish commander for the group.

Plane Incident Taken To UN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union declared Wednesday U.S. Air Force activities threatened the peace and called for a swift session of the United Nation Security Council to consider the latest plane incident.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union expects the Council to take up "without delay" the case of the U.S. reconnaissance bomber shot down in the arctic July 1.

Echoing the words of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at a news conference Tuesday, Gromyko's cable to the UN.. said "the new aggressive activities of the U. S. Air Force against the Soviet Union" were "a threat to the peace of the world."

The cable urged the council to take such measures as are necessary to end "the continuing provocative actions by the United States."

The Soviet Union says the plane was on a spying mission and was shot down by a Soviet fighter plane over territorial waters.

The United States denounced the downing of the RB47 in a note handed to the Foreign Ministry Wednesday.

The United States demanded the return of two of the six-man crew and the body of a third the Russians said they recovered. The Soviet Union says it will try the two as spies.

British Soldiers Go To Cameroons

LONDON (AP) — The Colonial Office announced Wednesday that 1,400 British soldiers will go to the Cameroons and serve there while the African territory decides its own future.

The statement said: "This decision is in no way connected with events in the Congo." The area is administed by Britain as a trust territory but on the recommendations of the United Nations a plebiscite will be held there Feb. 11.

Woman Swept To Death As Reservoir Wall Breaks

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A reservoir wall broke in suburban Penn Hills Wednesday, unleashing a thundering wave of water that swept a housewife from her yard to her death.

Jean Aber, 39, was in the yard of her home about 600 yards from the two million gallon reservoir when the 15-foot high wall broke.

The wave of water—estimated as high as 30 feet—thundered down a ravine, picked up Mrs. Aber and swept her several hundred yards from her home. Two men found her body pinned against a tree by a heavy timber.

Two of her children, Robert, 11, and James, 10, were at home but escaped injury.

The rushing torrent of water did not touch any houses as it roared down the ravine.

Witnesses said the wall of the Wilkinsburg-Penn Hills Water Authority reservoir bulged, then opened like a gate.

"I heard the thunder coming and wondered what was up," said Tony Ciminaro who lives nearby. "We saw this wall of water coming down, tearing out trees and sweeping away an auto."

After whipping through the ravine, the wall of water emptied into the Allegheny River without causing any more damage.

Mrs. Aber was apparently the only victim. Her husband was at work.

More African Colonies Freed

PARIS (UPI) — France proclaimed three more former African colonies independent Wednesday.

Premier Michel Debre warned the leaders of the newly independent states of Chad, the Congo Republic and the Central African Republic that "independence does not solve all problems," but he pointed out a significant difference between the former French colonies and the former Belgian Congo, now torn by strife.

"You have the advantage of having already acquired long political experience," he said.

Neighbors Complain, Woman Loses 28 Of Her Canines

BALTIMORE (AP) — Miss Florence Smythe is going to be lonely. She'll have only two dogs for company. She had 30 until today.

Neighbors of the 59-year-old woman complained to police about so many dogs in her small home. She was charged with disturbing the peace.

Magistrate Howard Aaron offered to dismiss the charge if she would part with 28 of the dogs. Miss Smythe cried and pleaded:

"Dogs are not like men. They do not curse. My dogs are good."

But the magistrate was adamant. And Miss Smythe parted with all except two of her pets.

Italian Police Prepare For "Doomsday" Traffic

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP)—Thursday is the day the earth is supposed to be knocked off its axis and Wednesday Italian police went rushing up Europe's highest mountain.

Not that they believe the dire prediction of Dr. Elio Bianca and his followers that someone will touch off a mercury bomb, turning the earth on its side, and sending the oceans roaring over all but the highest peaks.

They went up Mt. Blanc to handle a possible rush of traffic by foreigners seeking the shelter of the 15,780-foot peak and to control the antics of scoffers.

The cops concentrated around "Survival Island," 7,150 feet up on Blanc's slopes where the bearded Bianca and his 100 Italian doomsday cultists have dug in to survive the world's end.

Bianca, a Milan specialist in children's ailments, took along food reserves and ordered 10 small arks. The boats so far have not arrived.

Reports said Bianca had received a letter from a correspondent to expect a flood of foreign cultists to join him.

The letter said 151 from France, 50 from Holland, 108 from Britain, 105 from Poland, 44 from the Soviet Union and 95 from China were converging upon Mt. Blanc from all directions and were due Thursday morning—in the nick of time.

The letter did not say how the Russians, Chinese and others got out of their countries in time to reach salvation. But it did say they were bringing their own provisions, plus nine trucks, three bulldozers, three cranes, eight amphibious vehicles, six motorcycles, 22 jeeps and six rubber boats.

The letter could be a gag. But police took no chances. All that could cause quite a traffic problem halfway up Mt. Blanc, where travel is rugged even for Alpinists.

Paratroopers Grab Airport In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (AP)—Belgian paratroopers wrested the Leopoldville airport from Negro soldiers of the faltering new Congo government in a 48-minute skirmish Wednesday.

The breakdown of the authority of Prime Minister Patrice Lumumba's 13-day-old regime appeared almost complete.

Both Lumumba and President Joseph Kasavubu were out of town when the Belgian units opened their first armed action at this capital. The Congolese leaders—feuding with Brussels and some of their own followers—were not consulted by Belgian authorities.

At least one Congolese soldier was killed in the brisk exchange of gunfire and grenades for control of the airport.

The paratroopers freed about 200 white persons—men, women and children—who had been menaced by the guns of Congolese soldiers as they waited at the airport for planes to fly them out of this former Belgian colony.

Great relief among white residents at the intervention of the Belgian troopers was tempered by uncertainity over how much of the city they controlled. Downtown hotels, the railroad station and some other centers remained under guard of Negro soldiers.

Throngs of nervous whites, spurred by the airport clash—streamed across the Congo River by ferry to the safety of Brazzaville.

Illustrating the chaotic political situation, Kasavubu and Lumumba denounced a request by their government for military aid by an international force as a "Belgian colonialist plot." They telegraphed their view to the United Nations.

The United States rejected the idea quickly, saying it preferred that American help be channeled through the United Nations. Belgium, which has several thousand soldiers already on the ground by treaty, asked the U.N. for help—possibly military aid—in restoring order.

Lumumba's government had asked the U.N. Sunday for help.

But diplomatic sources said this request was only for administrators, not soldiers.

In Elisabethville, Katanga's capital Premier Moise Tshombe reiterated he is determined to withdraw his mineral-rich province from the Congo. He denied in an interview a report that he had changed his mind about secession, which he announced Sunday.

Ike Willing For UN Debate

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President Eisenhower declared Wednesday night the United States is ready and willing to go to the UN Security Council on what he termed the Soviet Union's "wanton shooting down" of an American reconnaissance plane.

The President issued a statement at the summer White House a few hours after Russia had demanded an emergency session of the Security Council on the plane incident. In doing so the Soviets accused the .US. Air Force of aggressive activities.

"The United States government," Eisenhower said, "is ready and willing to go to the Security Council for a full discussion of the Soviet's wanton shooting down of the United States Air Force RB47 plane in international waters July 1."

The President said that in the Security Council the United States "will focus attention on the lawless actions and reckless threats of the Soviet government."

Nike-Cajun Rocket Fizzles

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—A Nike-Cajun rocket carrying explosive charges fizzled Wednesday night and reached only about half the expected 90-mile altitude.

The explosive charges, expected to make white puffs of smoke visible along areas of the Middle Atlantic coast, failed to explode.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said cause of the failure was not immediately determined. The rocket reached only 90,000 feet (about 38 miles) despite the fact the second stage apparently fired on schedule, NASA said.

The launching was at 8:45 p.m. (EDT), shortly after darkness fell along the coast.

The Nike-Cajun rocket firing had no connection with Strongarm rocket tests resumed at Wallops Island Wednesday.

TOKYO (AP)—Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi was stabbed by an unidentified man Thursday but hospital officials said his wound—in the left thigh—was not serious.

More African Colonies Freed

PARIS (UPI) — France proclaimed three more former African colonies independent Wednesday.

Premier Michel Debre warned the leaders of the newly independent states of Chad, the Congo Republic and the Central African Republic that "independence does not solve all problems," but he pointed out a significant difference between the former French colonies and the former Belgian Congo, now torn by strife.

"You have the advantage of having already acquired long political experience," he said.

UN Summoned To Session On Congo Strife

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold summoned an extraordinary session of the Security Council Wednesday night to propose authorization of a U.N. military force to restore order and institute a training program in the strife-torn Congo.

Hammarskjold called the council into the unusual session in the face of an implied threat by Congolese leaders Patrice Lumumba and Joseph Kasavubu to go to Red China for military help if the United Nations did not act quickly.

The extraordinary session was called as Russia accused the United States of planning Western intervention in the Congo and announced it had asked the U.N. for immediate action to end "armed aggression" in the new African nation.

The Soviet statement by Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko charged that the United States was "working out plans" to extend the intervention of the Western powers under the flag of the United Nations.

Gromyko handed the statement to the U.S. Charge d'Affaires in Moscow.

Diplomatic observers expected that Hammarskjold would seek a contingent similar to the U.N. emergency force now on duty on the Israeli - Egyptian border. It was expected that the force would be recruited, as far as possible, from French-speaking African countries. It was likely that some officers might be sent from the U.N. Palestine truce supervision organization to head the training program and there was talk of naming an overall Swedish commander for the group.

Plane Incident Taken To UN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union declared Wednesday U.S. Air Force activities threatened the peace and called for a swift session of the United Nation Security Council to consider the latest plane incident.

Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko said the Soviet Union expects the Council to take up "without delay" the case of the U.S. reconnaissance bomber shot down in the arctic July 1.

Echoing the words of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev at a news conference Tuesday, Gromyko's cable to the UN., said "the new aggressive activities of the U. S. Air Force against the Soviet Union" were "a threat to the peace of the world."

The cable urged the council to take such measures as are necessary to end "the continuing provocative actions by the United States."

The Soviet Union says the plane was on a spying mission and was shot down by a Soviet fighter plane over territorial waters.

The United States denounced the downing of the RB47 in a note handed to the Foreign Ministry Wednesday.

The United States demanded the return of two of the six-man crew and the body of a third the Russians said they recovered. The Soviet Union says it will try the two as spies.

Neighbors Complain, Woman Loses 28 Of Her Canines

BALTIMORE (AP) — Miss Florence Smythe is going to be lonely. She'll have only two dogs for company. She had 30 until today.

Neighbors of the 59-year-old woman complained to police about so many dogs in her small home. She was charged with disturbing the peace.

Magistrate Howard Aaron offered to dismiss the charge if she would part with 28 of the dogs. Miss Smythe cried and pleaded: "Dogs are not like men. They do not curse. My dogs are good."

But the magistrate was adamant. And Miss Smythe parted with all except two of her pets.

Woman Swept To Death As Reservoir Wall Breaks

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A reservoir wall broke in suburban Penn Hills Wednesday, unleashing a thundering wave of water that swept a housewife from her yard to her death.

Jean Aber, 39, was in the yard of her home about 600 yards from the two million gallon reservoir when the 15-foot high wall broke.

The wave of water—estimated as high as 30 feet—thundered down a ravine, picked up Mrs. Aber and swept her several hundred yards from her home. Two men found her body pinned against a tree by a heavy timber.

Two of her children, Robert, 11, and James, 10, were at home but escaped injury.

The rushing torrent of water did not touch any houses as it roared down the ravine.

Witnesses said the wall of the Wilkinsburg-Penn Hills Water Authority reservoir bulged, then opened like a gate.

"I heard the thunder coming and wondered what was up," said Tony Ciminaro who lives nearby. "We saw this wall of water coming down, tearing out trees and sweeping away an auto."

After whipping through the ravine, the wall of water emptied into the Allegheny River without causing any more damage.

Mrs. Aber was apparently the only victim. Her husband was at work.

Italian Police Prepare For "Doomsday" Traffic

COURMAYEUR, Italy (AP)—Thursday is the day the earth is supposed to be knocked off its axis and Wednesday Italian police went rushing up Europe's highest mountain.

Not that they believe the dire prediction of Dr. Elio Bianca and his followers that someone will touch off a mercury bomb, turning the earth on its side, and sending the oceans roaring over all but the highest peaks.

They went up Mt. Blanc to handle a possible rush of traffic by foreigners seeking the shelter of the 15,780-foot peak and to control the antics of scoffers.

The cops concentrated around "Survival Island," 7,150 feet up on Blanc's slopes where the bearded Bianca and his 100 Italian doomsday cultists have dug in to survive the world's end.

Bianca, a Milan specialist in children's ailments, took along food reserves and ordered 10 small arks. The boats so far have not arrived.

Reports said Bianca had received a letter from a correspondent to expect a flood of foreign cultists to join him.

The letter said 151 from France, 50 from Holland, 108 from Britain, 105 from Poland, 44 from the Soviet Union and 95 from China were converging upon Mt. Blanc from all directions and were due Thursday morning—in the nick of time.

The letter did not say how the Russians, Chinese and others got out of their countries in time to reach salvation. But it did say they were bringing their own provisions, plus nine trucks, three bulldozers, three cranes, eight amphibious vehicles, six motorcycles, 22 jeeps and six rubber boats.

The letter could be a gag. But police took no chances. All that could cause quite a traffic problem halfway up Mt. Blanc, where travel is rugged even for Alpinists.

Helicopter Picks Up Third Member Of Jet

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI)—A Coast Guard helicopter rescued from a swamp Wednesday the third member of an Air Force B-47 jet which crashed in the Everglades.

The three crewmen parachuted from the airplane when it caught fire Tuesday night. The six-jet Strategic Air Command bomber exploded in air as the men bailed out.

The helicopter picked up Capt. Cassius Davidson, 35, co-pilot, in the Everglades near Clewiston about dawn Wednesday. The other two crewmen were found soon after the crash.

Rescuers took Davidson to the general hospital in Clewiston, but he was not seriously injured. Already at the hospital was Lt. William J. Vaughn, 25, the navigator, who broke his arm in parachuting to safety.

The pilot of the plane was Maj. Morris E. Saunders.

U.S. Officials Fear New Congo Nation In Peril

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top administration officials were reported fearful Wednesday that turmoil in the Congo may explode anew in the next 48 hours with the life of the nation hanging in the balance.

Worried officials urgently pressed ahead with evacuation of Americans amid prospects that whatever action the United Nations takes may be too late to prevent new riots and bloodshed.

The belief spread that survival of the 13-day-old African republic might hinge on developments in the next few days.

Some authorities were disturbed by an unconfirmed report that attacks on white residents fleeing the Congo might spread to the neighboring French Congo, now a temporary haven for thousands of refugees.

New alarm about the Congo uproar came mainly from a confidential report by U.S. Ambassador Claire Timberlake in food-short Leopoldville.

Timberlake warned that the next 48 hours could bring added chaos unless swift and effective steps are taken by friendly nations to control the mutinying native troops.

Despite the darkening outlook, there seemed virtually no prospect the United States would reverse a decision to avoid any single-handed action in the crisis.

Administration leaders looked to the United Nations in New York for whatever intervention might be decided upon. They were ready to pledge American technical help, transportation and funds—but no troops—for any U.N. emergency force.

A split in the Congo government plus new clashes between Belgian and Congolese troops at the Leopoldville airport added to fears that more trouble lies ahead.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko's newest denunciation of alleged American plans to intervene was viewed as adding another inflammatory element. Moscow apparently is hoping to fan the Congo troubles into an all-Africa drive against white colonialists, some officials said.

The State Department reported that some 400 of 2,000 Americans in the Congo have been evacuated in emergency airlifts and motor convoys.

never would have attempted in its zaniest moments. By the clock and noise meter, the Kennedy demonstration came out just about even with that for Johnson.

In all this uproar, there was the customary missing note. Kennedy was absent, in an apartment hideaway on the edge of Hollywood.

Johnson, too, had been absent before him, because there is an unspoken taboo against a candidate's appearing on the scene while the nominating process is going on.

Johnson's team had started into the convention nominating session with 381 votes showing for their man on the AP tally sheet. Symington had 94½, Stevenson 84½. Humphrey and various others had 96½ and there were 87½ uncommitted votes.

Johnson Plays Rough

As the closest rival, Johnson put on a blazing last-minute campaign for help in heading off Kennedy. And he was playing rough and for keeps.

He talked of Kennedy, Hitlerism and McCarthyism all in one breath. He contended delegates were in revolt against the Massachusetts senator and appealed to people back home to turn the heat on wavering ones.

Johnson also was gaining a bit, even though he still was back in the dust of a Kennedy bandwagon. Delaware pitched all its 11 votes to him.

Minnesota and a pair of close political allies split apart.

Gov. Orville Freeman, with an eye on a possible vice-presidential spot on a Kennedy ticket, announced he had been tapped to place Kennedy's name in nomination at the convention.

Wallops Island Rocket Tests Show Success

WALLOPS ISLAND, Va. (AP)—Scientists claimed at least partial success Wednesday as a series of Strongarm rocket tests resumed at this East Coast launching center.

Strongarm III, a five-stage rocket topped by a nose cone carrying a tiny transmitter, was blasted from its pad in a morning shot that failed to achieve all its objectives.

Officials of the Army Ordnance Corps Ballistic Research Laboratories and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had hoped the 7,125-pound rocket would reach an altitude of 1,100 miles and a speed of 17,000 feet a second at burnout.

Neither goal was achieved, but the reasons why will not be known until all data has been analyzed. Even so, scientists said the height reached by the 56½-foot rocket was enough to provide some valuable information.

What was learned from the Strongarm III firing was not disclosed, although the purpose of the testing is to gather information on atmospheric conditions in the area through which some of the nation's mightiest military missiles will travel.

Measurements of electron densities are gathered by the rocket at altitudes at which intercontinental ballistic missiles and the Army's anti-ICBM weapon Nike-Zeus will operate.

The data also goes to various agencies participating in the 1960 International Geophysical Cooperation program.

Ordnance Corps scientists from Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., in cooperation with experts from the University of Michigan and the NASA, designed the Strongarm rockets. They are made up of an Army Honest John rocket, two Army Nike-Ajax boosters, a modified Air Force Recruit and a "scaled" Army Sergeant missile.

Strongarm I was fired successfully here last November. Eight days later Strongarm II failed because of a third-stage malfunction.

Ribicoff Floor Manager Of Kennedy's Campaign

CONVENTION HALL, LOS ANGELES (AP)—This is Sen. John F. Kennedy's "command post," the nerve-center in his stretch drive for the Democratic nomination for president.

It is in the middle of the convention floor, directly beneath the placard that says "Connecticut."

Handsome, dark-haired Abraham A. Ribicoff, governor of Connecticut, is operating it. He is Kennedy's floor manager, the "field general," in Army parlance.

Attached to the seat in front of Ribicoff's is a panel of seven buttons, each a different color. They are telephone connections linking the command post with Kennedy's headquarters and six subsidiary outposts on the convention floor.

The senator is not in Convention Hall. There is a kind of unwritten law—not always observed—that a candidate stays away from the hall during the convention. Kennedy and some other aides are in a bungalow on adjacent grounds.

One of the seven buttons in front of Ribicoff connects with the bungalow.

The other six put the governor in touch with observers strategically placed to cover the whole huge floor. They are beside the delegations from Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts, Wyoming, New York and Rhode Island.

From these six outposts, scouts equipped with walkie-talkies, fan out through the milling delegates. At almost a moment's notice, Ribicoff can find out what's happening in any corner of the floor.

There are many uncertainties, wobbly votes, potential switches, last-minute surprises.

It's Ribicoff's job to discover an upset as quickly as possible—sense the unforeseen before it happens—get the word to Kennedy and make a split-second strategy decision.

Statehouse Robber Makes New Bid To Get Release

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Earl T. Mathews, celebrated statehouse robber, makes a new bid Thursday to obtain release from the Kanawha County jail pending further legal action on a charge of taking more than $352,000 from the State Department of Motor Vehicles vault.

Arguments will be held before the State Supreme Court on whether bond of $25,000 set for Mathews following his arraignment on a breaking and entering charge is excessive.

Mathews attorney, Stanley Preiser, told the court in a petition for the hearing Monday the amount is 10 times that normally required for such a charge. Bond was set by Kanawha County Prosecutor Charles Walker, who along with Sheriff T.H. McGovran and Jailer John Layne have been ordered to show cause why it should not be lowered.

"My clients constitutional rights have been threatened," Preiser declared. "He is not guilty of a major crime, just embarrassing the state of West Virginia."

Meanwhile, State Police Sgt. James D. Baisden is preparing to give Mathews a lie detector test. Investigating officers who arrested Mathews last Friday and obtained a confession that he slipped into the department's vault June 19 and made off with the cash are skeptical of some parts of the confession.

One of the areas of disagreement is Mathews' contention that he staged the job alone. Most of the officers assigned to the case feel he had to have some help entering the vault through an air duct and escaping the same way with the money.

Cambridge Votes Decidedly For Sunday Movies

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Voters in this Eastern Shore community Wednesday elected a mayor and three councilmen and decided overwhelmingly to permit Sunday movies.

Calvin W. Mowbray, 44-year-old traffic manager for a packing company, easily defeated Osvrey Pritchett, partner in a plumbing concern, in the contest for mayor. The vote was 1,620 to 977.

Mowbray will be sworn in Monday to succeed Mayor Russell P. Smith, who did not seek reelection.

The new councilmen are William N. Wright, Dr. Arthur Parker and R. Virgil Stedden. Wright defeated Frank Ero, 311-230; Dr. Parker defeated J. Wesley Horner, 397-443, and Stedden won over Harvey H. Conway, 453-233.

The vote in favor of lifting the ban on Sunday movies was 1,164 to 574. The special referendum was authorized by the 1960 General Assembly.

Calif. Man Is Indicted

BALTIMORE (AP) — A secret indictment against a California insurance man was made public Wednesday with the announced arrest of Stewart B. Hopps at his suburban San Francisco home.

Hopps was arrested Tuesday night on a Federal Grand Jury indictment returned earlier in the day at Baltimore. He was released on $10,000 bail.

Hopps was accused of mailing false financial statements in an insurance brochure that went to the Maryland Insurance Commissioner and the Better Business Bureau of Baltimore.

The Justice Department at Washington said Hopps was listed as American manager of the International Guaranty and Insurance Co. of Tangiers, Morocco.

The indictment claimed the brochure falsely represented the financial condition of the company, and that more than a million dollars of its assets "represented worthless stocks and bonds of four Panamanian corporations which existed only on paper."

Hopps specifically was accused of mailing the brochure to State Insurance Commissioner Charles F. Jackson and the Better Business Bureau for the purpose of promoting the Tangier firm's business in this country.

20-Year-Old Man Drowns In River

BALTIMORE (AP)—A 20-year-old Baltimore man drowned in Middle River in nearby Baltimore County Wednesday after he jumped into the water from a boat for a short swim.

County police said the victim, Michael F. Derry, was riding in an 18-foot runabout in the river off Wilson Point Road when he dived into the water. When he disappeared under the surface, his companions called the police.

The river was dragged and the body was recovered about an hour later. Derry was pronounced dead at City Hospitals.

Sliding Scale Proposed For Insurance Rates

SALISBURY (AP)—An Eastern Shore legislator proposed Wednesday that hospital and medical insurance rates be figured on a sliding scale on the basis of hospital costs in each locality of the state.

Del. R. P. Cannon (D-Wicomico), in a letter to State Insurance Commission S. Douglass Sears, said such a system would be similar to assessment of automobile insurance costs.

Cannon also protested an application by Blue Cross and Blue Shield for another rate boost. He said he had received several complaints from subscribers in his area.

The two non-profit insurance plans are seeking increases ranging from $1.20 to $2.40 for hospital coverage and five cents to $1.20 for medical insurance.

Cannon proposed that premiums be lower for subscribers living in areas where hospital costs are lower.

"For example," he told Sears, "If the Baltimore City area has an average hospital rate of $35 per day, then people in that area who would be served by Baltimore city hospitals would be charged the highest Blue Cross rate, and areas with lower per diem costs should be charged lower premiums."

He noted that in his area of the state, hospital rates generally are around $24 daily compared with $30 at one large Baltimore hospital.

Statehouse Robber Makes New Bid To Get Release

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Earl T. Mathews, celebrated statehouse robber, makes a new bid Thursday to obtain release from the Kanawha County jail pending further legal action on a charge of taking more than $352,000 from the State Department of Motor Vehicles vault.

Arguments will be held before the State Supreme Court on whether bond of $25,000 set for Mathews following his arraignment on a breaking and entering charge is excessive.

Mathews attorney, Stanley Preiser, told the court in a petition for the hearing Monday the amount is 10 times that normally required for such a charge. Bond was set by Kanawha County Prosecutor Charles Walker, who along with Sheriff T.H. McGovran and Jailer John Layne have been ordered to show cause why it should not be lowered.

"My clients constitutional rights have been threatened," Preiser declared. "He is not guilty of a major crime, just embarrassing the state of West Virginia."

Meanwhile, State Police Sgt. James D. Baisden is preparing to give Mathews a lie detector test. Investigating officers who arrested Mathews last Friday and obtained a confession that he slipped into the department's vault June 19 and made off with the cash are skeptical of some parts of the confession.

One of the areas of disagreement is Mathews' contention that he staged the job alone. Most of the officers assigned to the case feel he had to have some help entering the vault through an air duct and escaping the same way with the money.

Separated Quints Easier To Raise States Father

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Five are as easy to raise as one, says Franco Diligenti, father of the world's only living quintuplets-if you don't let them gang up on you.

One of the three girls already is married and one of the boys is at prep school in Vancouver, Canada. The other boy will leave for a different school in Vancouver later this year. The remaining two girls are studying at separate schools in Buenos Aires.

That has always been father Diligenti's theory for raising quintuplets — keep them separated most of the time.

"I had to break them up when they were small," he says. "They had too much team spirit. They ganged up on you. If we had something new for dinner and one said he didn't like it, all the others immediately said they didn't like it either."

"If one went out somewhere all the others wanted to trail along. I knew they couldn't live all their lives together and decided if they were to get along all right they had to start developing individual personalities."

Diligenti's solution to the problem was to send the quints to five different English boarding schools when they were only 7. Since then they have seen each other only from time to time.

"They all didn't have the same weekends off or the same vacation time," Diligenti says. "So sometimes it was months before all five got together at the same time. Of course, we took vacations together and had special family parties but most of the time they lived individual lives."

"I would say they managed to grow up with a normal brother-sister relationship without thinking they were freaks or always an inseparable team."

Diligenti had the advantage of considerable wealth to help him in his plan to raise the quints as normal human beings. He came from Milan, Italy, when he was 22 in 1922 and carved out a highly successful life in Argentina. He managed to raise money to build a factory, then added another and another until he had 10 factories making distinct products. Now 60, Diligenti has cut his factory ownership down to six, but still lives a millionaire's life.

The quints were raised in a mansion in this city with a private swimming pool, large grounds in which to play, an outdoor dance pavillion and a big play house. A full-time swimming instructor and language teachers were provided.

Diligenti was wealthy enough to turn down all commercial offers to exploite the quints. He refused 22 offers of substantial amounts in the first year.

Diligenti says he and his wife, who was 41 when the quints were born (delivered by a midwife as is often customary in Argentina) were surprised when five arrived.

"The doctor, after listening with his stethoscope said he heard a 'symphony' of heartbeats but the most we expected was two or three," he says. "But when they were five I tried to keep their birth a secret to avoid publicity for them."

By recording the births at different registries on different days, Diligenti did conceal their birth for eight months before the news got out.

Diligenti has three other children, a married son, 30, in Vancouver, a married daughter, 23, in Rome and a daughter, 23, living here who plans to go to Rome this year to be married. He has six grandchildren.

The quints are by name Franco, Carlos Alberto, Maria Esther, Maria Cristina and Maria Fernanda. Maria Esther was recently married.

Character Actor Only Part-Timer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Acting is a part time job for Andy Ho, the comic hotel keeper in "The World of Suzie Wong."

Born in Singapore 47 years ago, Andy attended St. Andrew's School before moving to England. He abandoned his studies in favor of a stage career, and made his London stage debut in 1937 with Charles Laughton in "The Vessel of Wrath."

After serving in World War II, Andy decided in 1945 that acting was too precarious for a married man with four children. He went into the restaurant business and now is a partner in a Charing Cross Road restaurant in London's "Tin Pan Alley." But he still finds himself much in demand as a Chinese character actor.

Separated Quints Easier To Raise States Father

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Five are as easy to raise as one, says Franco Diligenti, father of the world's only living quintuplets-if you don't let them gang up on you.

One of the three girls already is married and one of the boys is at prep school in Vancouver, Canada. The other boy will leave for a different school in Vancouver later this year. The remaining two girls are studying at separate schools in Buenos Aires.

That has always been father Diligenti's theory for raising quintuplets — keep them separated most of the time.

"I had to break them up when they were small," he says. "They had too much team spirit. They ganged up on you. If we had something new for dinner and one said he didn't like it, all the others immediately said they didn't like it either."

"If one went out somewhere all the others wanted to trail along. I knew they couldn't live all their lives together and decided if they were to get along all right they had to start developing individual personalities."

Diligenti's solution to the problem was to send the quints to five different English boarding schools when they were only 7. Since then they have seen each other only from time to time.

"They all didn't have the same weekends off or the same vacation time," Diligenti says. "So sometimes it was months before all five got together at the same time. Of course, we took vacations together and had special family parties but most of the time they lived individual lives."

"I would say they managed to grow up with a normal brother-sister relationship without thinking they were freaks or always an inseparable team."

Diligenti had the advantage of considerable wealth to help him in his plan to raise the quints as normal human beings. He came from Milan, Italy, when he was 22 in 1922 and carved out a highly successful life in Argentina. He managed to raise money to build a factory, then added another and another until he had 10 factories making distinct products. Now 60, Diligenti has cut his factory ownership down to six, but still lives a millionaire's life.

The quints were raised in a mansion in this city with a private swimming pool, large grounds in which to play, an outdoor dance pavillion and a big play house. A full-time swimming instructor and language teachers were provided.

Diligenti was wealthy enough to turn down all commercial offers to exploite the quints. He refused 22 offers of substantial amounts in the first year.

Diligenti says he and his wife, who was 41 when the quints were born (delivered by a midwife as is often customary in Argentina) were surprised when five arrived.

"The doctor, after listening with his stethoscope said he heard a 'symphony' of heartbeats but the most we expected was two or three," he says. "But when they were five I tried to keep their birth a secret to avoid publicity for them."

By recording the births at different registries on different days, Diligenti did conceal their birth for eight months before the news got out.

Diligenti has three other children, a married son, 30, in Vancouver, a married daughter, 23, in Rome and a daughter, 23, living here who plans to go to Rome this year to be married. He has six grandchildren.

The quints are by name Franco, Carlos Alberto, Maria Esther, Maria Cristina and Maria Fernanda. Maria Esther was recently married.

Character Actor Only Part-Timer

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Acting is a part time job for Andy Ho, the comic hotel keeper in "The World of Suzie Wong."

Born in Singapore 47 years ago, Andy attended St. Andrew's School before moving to England. He abandoned his studies in favor of a stage career, and made his London stage debut in 1937 with Charles Laughton in "The Vessel of Wrath."

After serving in World War II, Andy decided in 1945 that acting was too precarious for a married man with four children. He went into the restaurant business and now is a partner in a Charing Cross Road restaurant in London's "Tin Pan Alley." But he still finds himself much in demand as a Chinese character actor.

City Rejects Plan To Close Crossing

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad yesterday asked permission to close down the Baltimore Street crossing for a period of two weeks during which a new track and crossing would be installed, but the request was turned down by Police and Fire Commissioner Philmore F. Fleming.

Meeting with Commissioner Fleming, Police Chief B. F. Gaffney and Mayor J. Edwin Keech were David Glaser, track superintendent for the B&O's Cumberland Division, and Kenneth Cotton, assistant division engineer.

The rail firm sought permission for the closing from the city engineer's office, with the conference with the city officials following rejection of the proposal.

A general discussion of the problems confronting both the city and rail company followed, and another meeting was tentatively set for the first of next week when the B&O officials are expected to submit other plans for consideration.

The need for a new crossing is recognized by the city, Fleming informed Glaser and Cotton, but the closing of the city's principal thoroughfare for any extended period is unthinkable.

The city officials inquired as to the possibility of around-the-clock work, with the B&O spokesmen answering that such a plan cannot be arranged because of a manpower shortage. It was explained that only a small force is available for the work because of furloughs.

Fleming also rejected a proposal for closing the crossing for one week when the B&O men said the work possibly could be done in that period if a 10- to 16-hour work day could be arranged.

During the discussion, the B&O officials disclosed the fact that a new method of installing track will be used when the work starts. It was explained that the track will be prefabricated at the shops here and then laid by crane as the present tracks are taken up.

The innovation will be new to the Cumberland Division, Glaser and Cotton said, although it has been used successfully on other portions of the B&O system.

Following this announcement, it was suggested that the crossing be closed from the 15 to 30-minute period it might take to pull up the old track and install the prefab units, but no decision was reached.

The B&O officials requested another meeting on the plan, informing Commissioner Fleming that some other proposals will try and be reached at that time.

In explaining his rejection of the B&O proposals, Fleming said the free flow of traffic is essential to the well being of the city.

He pointed out that the crossing closing is being requested at the height of the tourist season, and likewise would be a deterrent to the evening shopping hours on Mondays.

Traffic delays resulting from blocked crossings are "more than enough," the commissioner continued, adding that the closing of the crossing would result in changing the flow on a least six major arteries.

Fleming also cited the added expense of any such plan, explaining that he would need at least eight to 10 policemen to direct traffic at the intersections affected.

Stating that he was aware of the importance of the rail company to the economic life of the community, Fleming said "anything workable will be agreeable to the city." The extended closing of the Baltimore Street crossing, however, is unthinkable.

Chief Gaffney said the B&O proposal would mean that existing traffic patterns would have to be changed at George, Harrison, Union and Frederick streets, as well as the Central YMCA intersection.

Scouts To Hold Camporee, Field Day

As part of scouting's 50th anniversary, Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, is planning to hold its Jubilee Camporee and Explorer Field Day at Camp Potomac, Oldtown, the weekend of July 23-24.

The Jubilee Camporee is replacing the annual camporee usually held in May. It is for all troops and posts in the council.

The Explorer units will hold their field day on Saturday, July 23, with the following events scheduled for the afternoon: Brief swim, rowboat relay, rifle marksmanship, canoe jousting, archery marksmanship and sit-up contest. All equipment will be furnished by the camp.

All Explorer units throughout the country will be holding their jamboree while approximately 55,000 boys and leaders will be attending the National Jamboree at Colorado Springs, Colo.

H. H. Lowery, council Jubilee chairman, announced that scouts attending will be entitled to wear permanently embroidered National Camporee emblems and Explorers are entitled to wear the National Field Day patch for participating.

Lowery also stated that the Army Corps of Engineers has decided to have one Scout or Explorer become a member of the winter research program at Camp Century, Greenland. The project will run from October 15 to April of 1961. There will be no expense for the Scout or Explorer selected.

For selection, the applicant must be in top physical condition; hold Eagle Scout rank; be a high school graduate aged 17 to 19½, and have parental approval for the trip. The deadline for applying is August 1.

Pennsylvania Sets Gypsy Moth Traps

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) —The U.S. Department of Agriculture is setting 10,000 traps this summer over an 8,225-square mile area in central and eastern Pennsylvania.

Department agents are trying to round up the gypsy moth, a devastating insect that can turn hardwood forests into a shambles.

Phillip M. Schroeder, the area pest control supervisor, heads the trapping expedition, which is being conducted in cooperation with Pennsylvania State University's Agricultural Extension Division Division and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The moth traps being used in the program are, in themselves, unique. They are hollow metal cylinders which have a fly paper lining. Eight inches long and four inches in diameter, the traps are not exterminating devices, but are used merely to determine the presence of gypsy moths.

Once a moth is trapped in a given area, then the surrounding woodlands will be sprayed with an insecticide.

The census that was taken in 1960 was the 18th Decennial Census of the United States. It was the biggest count of heads ever made.

Following this announcement, it was suggested that the crossing be closed from the 15 to 30-minute period it might take to pull up the old track and install the prefab units, but no decision was reached.

The B&O officials requested another meeting on the plan, informing Commissioner Fleming that some other proposals will try and be reached at that time.

In explaining his rejection of the B&O proposals, Fleming said the free flow of traffic is essential to the well being of the city.

He pointed out that the crossing closing is being requested at the height of the tourist season, and likewise would be a deterrent to the evening shopping hours on Mondays.

Traffic delays resulting from blocked crossings are "more than enough," the commissioner continued, adding that the closing of the crossing would result in changing the flow on a least six major arteries.

Fleming also cited the added expense of any such plan, explaining that he would need at least eight to 10 policemen to direct traffic at the intersections affected.

Stating that he was aware of the importance of the rail company to the economic life of the community, Fleming said "anything workable will be agreeable to the city." The extended closing of the Baltimore Street crossing, however, is unthinkable.

Chief Gaffney said the B&O proposal would mean that existing traffic patterns would have to be changed at George, Harrison, Union and Frederick streets, as well as the Central YMCA intersection.

Scouts To Hold Camporee, Field Day

As part of scouting's 50th anniversary, Potomac Council, Boy Scouts of America, is planning to hold its Jubilee Camporee and Explorer Field Day at Camp Potomac, Oldtown, the weekend of July 23-24.

The Jubilee Camporee is replacing the annual camporee usually held in May. It is for all troops and posts in the council.

The Explorer units will hold their field day on Saturday, July 23, with the following events scheduled for the afternoon: Brief swim, rowboat relay, rifle marksmanship, canoe jousting, archery marksmanship and sit-up contest. All equipment will be furnished by the camp.

All Explorer units throughout the country will be holding their jamboree while approximately 55,000 boys and leaders will be attending the National Jamboree at Colorado Springs, Colo.

H. H. Lowery, council Jubilee chairman, announced that scouts attending will be entitled to wear permanently embroidered National Camporee emblems and Explorers are entitled to wear the National Field Day patch for participating.

Lowery also stated that the Army Corps of Engineers has decided to have one Scout or Explorer become a member of the winter research program at Camp Century, Greenland. The project will run from October 15 to April of 1961. There will be no expense for the Scout or Explorer selected.

For selection, the applicant must be in top physical condition; hold Eagle Scout rank; be a high school graduate aged 17 to 19½, and have parental approval for the trip. The deadline for applying is August 1.

Pennsylvania Sets Gypsy Moth Traps

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) —The U.S. Department of Agriculture is setting 10,000 traps this summer over an 8,225-square mile area in central and eastern Pennsylvania.

Department agents are trying to round up the gypsy moth, a devastating insect that can turn hardwood forests into a shambles.

Phillip M. Schroeder, the area pest control supervisor, heads the trapping expedition, which is being conducted in cooperation with Pennsylvania State University's Agricultural Extension Division Division and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

The moth traps being used in the program are, in themselves, unique. They are hollow metal cylinders which have a fly paper lining. Eight inches long and four inches in diameter, the traps are not exterminating devices, but are used merely to determine the presence of gypsy moths.

Once a moth is trapped in a given area, then the surrounding woodlands will be sprayed with an insecticide.

The census that was taken in 1960 was the 18th Decennial Census of the United States. It was the biggest count of heads ever made.

Pastel Paintbrush Is Pretty And Practical

Perk up with a pastel paintbrush! That's right—brushes for every household painting job now boast colored nylon bristles in such suprising shades as aqua, beige, yellow, pink, and red.

Besides being unexpectedly attractive, these paintbrushes have great utilitarian value. They last longer than ordinary brushes, spread paint evenly, wash and dry exceptionally fast, and reveal any paint or varnish residue that needs further cleaning off. After each use, swish your pretty brush through thinner, wash it in hot soap or detergent suds, rinse, and hang it to dry.

The Mizpah Bible Class of First Baptist Church will meet at 7:30 tomorrow evening at the home of Mrs. O. J. Mortzfeldt, 130 Potomac Street. Husbands of members have been invited.

Gifted Child Needs Summer Fun

The end of school brings mixed feelings to the nation's parents, who wonder just how organized the summer holidays should be for their children.

But for the parents of the gifted child, the problem can be especially worrisome. Should summer be a time for exposure to cultural activities, for educational trips, for lessons which couldn't be crammed into the school year? Or should summer move at a leisurely pace, directed primarily by the wishes of the child?

The director of the Psychological Center of Yeshiva University's Graduate School of Education, Dr. Boris Levinson, says a firm "no" to an over-organized summer.

Well-meaning parents usually overwhelm their gifted children with classes and courses, he says. They don't leave them a free moment.

Let Them Breathe

"You should see the little 7-and 8-year-olds who come in here for testing," he says. "They're studying everything — piano, dancing, painting. Their parents are so anxious to see these bright children succeed that they don't give them a chance to breathe."

He suggests summer be a time for reflection for both child and parent, a rest from school day pressures. The parent will then have more time to know his gifted child better, to talk with him, and to see how his mind and interests are developing.

Dr. Levinson suggests letting the gifted child take the initiative if he wants training in a given area, rather than forcing it on him.

With gifted children, he says, less emphasis should be made upon learning new facts or new techniques, and more emphasis upon learning how to integrate emotional responses, and how to develop intellectual control.

"In other words," says the psychologist, "spontaneous exploration of a new field should be encouraged."

And summer is the time for spontaneity.

A program of games and recreation has been planned for the annual picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans Association, which will be held Saturday at the Ali Ghan Country Club picnic grounds. It will begin at 10:30 a. m. and all employes, veterans and friends will be welcome to attend. Stanley Leasure is general chairman.

Mountain City Camp, 6, Woodmen of the World will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the hall, 144 Union Street. A social hour will follow the meeting and refreshments will be served.

Lawn Social To Be Held By Cresaptown Society

A lawn social will be held by the Cresaptown Women's Society of Christian Service August 12. Plans were formulated at the meeting Tuesday evening with Mrs. Lester McGill presiding. It will be held on the church lawn, beginning at 4 p. m.

The group discussed its responsibility for having a bake sale Friday in conjunction with the Community Fun Night.

Routine reports were given by Mrs. Ellsworth Lewis and Mrs. Arlie Borror. The latter announced $112.40 in the treasury. Various committee chairmen also gave their reports. Forty-six calls were reported. Mrs. Edgar Hounshell announced a zone meeting to be held October 13 at Fairview church.

Devotions were led by Mrs. W. A. Judy, who also read the scripture. She used as her theme, "Walking the Light, the Christian Youth of Leisure." The use of leisure was discussed, with Mrs. Fred Willison, using "What Is Leisure," as her topic; Mrs. Borror, "Little Nothing To Do;" and Mrs. Martin Johnson, "A Soul at Leisure for Itself." The program also included "More Love to Thee," sung by Mrs. Johnson and a poem, "The Christian Life," by Mrs. Judy. It closed with benediction.

Others present were Mrs. Alex Densock, Mrs. Dennis Elfritz, Mrs. Foster Glover, Mrs. Hubert Martz, Mrs. Blanch Flanagan, Mrs. A. D. Shank, Mrs. Trubador Lewis, Mrs. William Murphy, Mrs. Edgar Lewis, Mrs. Frances Twigg, Mrs. Clara Lewis, Mrs. G. E. Broadwater and Miss Evelyn May.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

With a score of 100¼ and average of 84, East-West, Mrs. William A. Douglas and Miss Louise Zihlman topped the field in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club game, Tuesday evening at the Woman's Civic Club house. Mrs. B. F. Lewis and Mrs. Joseph Wood tied with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McGreevy, with 93 for second place; and Mrs. Joseph Knepp and Miss Kathryn Laughlin were third with 90½.

North-South average was 94½ and Mrs. Gerard Everstine and Hugo Keller tied with John Wilkinson and A. J. Feigus with a score of 112. Second place were Mrs. Ralph Nevy and Mrs. Fred Puderbaugh with 104 and third, Mrs. Harvey Aronson and Mrs. Madeline Mewshaw with 97.

Let Them Breathe

"You should see the little 7-and 8-year-olds who come in here for testing," he says. "They're studying everything — piano, dancing, painting. Their parents are so anxious to see these bright children succeed that they don't give them a chance to breathe."

He suggests summer be a time for reflection for both child and parent, a rest from school day pressures. The parent will then have more time to know his gifted child better, to talk with him, and to see how his mind and interests are developing.

Dr. Levinson suggests letting the gifted child take the initiative if he wants training in a given area, rather than forcing it on him.

With gifted children, he says, less emphasis should be made upon learning new facts or new techniques, and more emphasis upon learning how to integrate emotional responses, and how to develop intellectual control.

"In other words," says the psychologist, "spontaneous exploration of a new field should be encouraged."

And summer is the time for spontaneity.

A program of games and recreation has been planned for the annual picnic of the Baltimore and Ohio Veterans Association, which will be held Saturday at the Ali Ghan Country Club picnic grounds. It will begin at 10:30 a. m. and all employes, veterans and friends will be welcome to attend. Stanley Leasure is general chairman.

Mountain City Camp, 6, Woodmen of the World will meet tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock at the hall, 144 Union Street. A social hour will follow the meeting and refreshments will be served.

Lawn Social To Be Held By Cresaptown Society

A lawn social will be held by the Cresaptown Women's Society of Christian Service August 12. Plans were formulated at the meeting Tuesday evening with Mrs. Lester McGill presiding. It will be held on the church lawn, beginning at 4 p. m.

The group discussed its responsibility for having a bake sale Friday in conjunction with the Community Fun Night.

Routine reports were given by Mrs. Ellsworth Lewis and Mrs. Arlie Borror. The latter announced $112.40 in the treasury. Various committee chairmen also gave their reports. Forty-six calls were reported. Mrs. Edgar Hounshell announced a zone meeting to be held October 13 at Fairview church.

Devotions were led by Mrs. W. A. Judy, who also read the scripture. She used as her theme, "Walking the Light, the Christian Youth of Leisure." The use of leisure was discussed, with Mrs. Fred Willison, using "What Is Leisure," as her topic; Mrs. Borror, "Little Nothing To Do;" and Mrs. Martin Johnson, "A Soul at Leisure for Itself." The program also included "More Love to Thee," sung by Mrs. Johnson and a poem, "The Christian Life," by Mrs. Judy. It closed with benediction.

Others present were Mrs. Alex Densock, Mrs. Dennis Elfritz, Mrs. Foster Glover, Mrs. Hubert Martz, Mrs. Blanch Flanagan, Mrs. A. D. Shank, Mrs. Trubador Lewis, Mrs. William Murphy, Mrs. Edgar Lewis, Mrs. Frances Twigg, Mrs. Clara Lewis, Mrs. G. E. Broadwater and Miss Evelyn May.

Bridge Winners Are Announced

With a score of 100¼ and average of 84, East-West, Mrs. William A. Douglas and Miss Louise Zihlman topped the field in the Potomac Valley Bridge Club game, Tuesday evening at the Woman's Civic Club house. Mrs. B. F. Lewis and Mrs. Joseph Wood tied with Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McGreevy, with 93 for second place; and Mrs. Joseph Knepp and Miss Kathryn Laughlin were third with 90½.

North-South average was 94½ and Mrs. Gerard Everstine and Hugo Keller tied with John Wilkinson and A. J. Feigus with a score of 112. Second place were Mrs. Ralph Nevy and Mrs. Fred Puderbaugh with 104 and third, Mrs. Harvey Aronson and Mrs. Madeline Mewshaw with 97.

A rummage sale will be held by the Loyal Crusaders Class of Park Place Methodist Church, July 19 from 10 a. m. until 2 p.m. in the basement of Centre Street Methodist Church.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarrass
Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Passengers Fined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Agency said Wednesday seven airline passengers who violated a rule banning "private" drinking have paid fines of $200 each.

The incident occurred on a New York to Montreal flight May 20. The agency gave no other details of the airline involved or the names of the passengers.

"She walks in beauty" means she hikes for health!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Hike For Health

The oldest form of exercise and transportation in the world has a new definition. A walk-out is simply a labor strike.

A walk out of doors? This is just an archaic expression still used to measure the shortest distance between two points — the house and the car.

Women seem to have forgotten the beauty benefits in a good brisk walk. And what they forget, they cannot teach their children. And so today's—and tomorrow's—young people are in danger of overlooking a natural opportunity for physical fitness and mental well-being.

Think what a purposeful stride in the open air can do for the joints, the muscles, the organs—most especially the heart and the lungs. Walking is not only an easy and inexpensive form of exercise, it also gets you where you're going. And gives you scenery and serenity to enjoy along the way.

Young moderns protest that time is too short and the distance too long. Indeed, so it is—when we do not allow enough time for the trip to begin with. Tell me, what do you do with all the time you save by that last-minute dash in the car? Most likely it is collected to spend extravagantly later, in a sedentary heap in front of television.

Or, most ridiculous, it is hoarded for a weekly hour at a ladies' "gym class." (After all, you do need SOME exercise.)

Women are spoiling themselves, and babying their children, with constant chauffeuring on short trips. Is a mile too much to ask of a strong spine and a pair of good legs? Apparently so, in this disabling era of car pools. Apparently so, as we build bigger high school parking lots for students' cars . . . while we insist that Physical Education be a required course in their curriculum.

Believe me, there would be fewer aches and pains, fewer circulatory problems, fewer customers for reducing diets and calisthenics — if women did more walking. They'd discover a complexion glow unlike any cosmetic's; an all-over exhilaration to beat any tranquilizer.

And when the day tapers away, they would relax refreshed, ready for sleep without soporifics to unwind their tangled tensions.

If you are too busy for an outdoor stroll each day, then you are simply TOO busy. Put your health ahead of at least one expendable committee . . . and get into the hiking habit!

Increases 300,000

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada's population reached an estimated 17,814,000 by June 1, up 372,000 from a year earlier, the Bureau of Statistics said Wednesday.

At the present rate of growth, the bureau said, the figure should reach 18 million by December.

The American's Creed was written by William Tyler Page, clerk of the United States House of Representatives, in 1917.

Farming, tourism and fishing are the chief occupations on the Isle of Man, situated in the Irish sea, 20 miles from Scotland. The mild climate is popular with tourists.

Once part of the ancient Incan empire, Bolivia was under Spanish domination for centuries before it gained independence in 1825, naming itself after Simon Bolivar, famed liberator.

Princes and princesses and other persons of royal blood are addressed as "His (or Her) Royal Highness," and saluted with "May it please Your Royal Highness."

Nationals Make Clean Sweep Of All-Star Games, 6-0

Senior Loop Players Belt Four Homers

A.L. Leaves Twelve On Base; Vern Law Victor, Ford Loser

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Willie Mays clouted a homer and two singles and Stan Musial, Eddie Mathews and Ken Boyer also hit home runs in the National League's 6-0 victory Wednesday over the American League for a clean sweep of the 1960 All-Star games.

The shutout, a combination eight-hit job by an assortment of six national pitchers, was only the third in 29 All-Star games. The Americans left 12 on base.

Only 38,362 turned out for Yankee Stadium's first All-Star game since 1939 on a hot, hazy and humid afternoon.

The Nationals, 5-3 winners in Kansas City Monday, cut the American's lead to 16-13 in the All-Star series with a record-tying blast of four home runs among their 10 hits off loser Whitey Ford of New York and four successors.

Mathews Starts Trouble

Mathews, the Milwaukee slugger, powered a Ford pitch deep into the lower right field seats with teammate Joe Adcock on base in the second inning. Mays, who had six hits in eight trips in the two 1960 games, lofted a homer deep into the lower stands in left in the third. He now has a nine-game all-star batting average of .438.

Musial, the 39-year-old St. Louis Cardinal favorite who was appearing in his 19th game, slammed a pinch homer into the upper deck in right in the seventh. It was his sixth All-Star homer, breaking his own record and smashing or tying a handful of All-Star marks.

Boyer, another St. Louis Cardinal, ended the scoring with a two-run homer into the lower stands in left after Norm Larker of Los Angeles walked to open the ninth.

Vern Law Is Winner

Vern Law, who saved the Monday game at Kansas City for Pittsburgh teammate Bob Friend, turned back the Americans in the first two innings while the Nationals piled up two runs. Law thus became the winning pitcher.

Johnny Podres of Los Angeles, troubled by wildness, got through his two-inning chore by making Maris of the Yankees pop up with the bases loaded in the third. Stan Williams, another Dodger, struggled through two innings and Larry Jackson of St. Louis, Bill Henry of Cincinnati and Lindy McDaniel of St. Louis finished up in that order with one inning each.

Ford yielded the homers to Mathews and Mays and left the game trailing 3-0. It was his second All - Star defeat. Chicago's Early Wynn pitched two shutout innings, Gerry Staley of the Sox yielded Musial's pinch homer and Gary Bell of Cleveland gave up the final pair on Boyer's clout. Detroit's Frank Lary pitched a scoreless eighth.

Musial Gets Hand

The crowd got a tremendous charge out of Musial's home run. The Man batted for Williams in the seventh and drove Staley's second pitch into the upper deck.

Mays simply was tremendous. He opened the game by lashing Ford's first pitch to left for a single. Before the inning was over he stole third but was trapped off third a minute later on an attempted double steal. In the third he homered. After fouling out in the fifth, he singled off Detroit's Frank Lary in the eighth.

Ted Williams, the 41-year-old Boston slugger in his 18th All-Star game also drew an ovation when he pinch hit for Chicago's Minnie Minoso in the seventh with teammate Frank Malzone on base. Williams singled sharply to right.

It was the third victory in five All-Star games for Manager Walter Alston of Los Angeles and the third straight defeat for Manager Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox.

Myhra Signs With Colts

Trade Rechichar To Pittsburgh

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Myhra, substitute offensive guard and regular placekicker, signed Wednesday for his fourth season with the Baltimore Colts.

He kicked a famous 20-yard field goal two years ago in the National Football League championship game with the New York Giants. It tied the score 17-17 seven seconds before the end of the fourth quarter. The Colts went on to score a touchdown in the first championship football overtime and win the title 23-17.

Myhra booted 50 out of 51 extra points and six field goals out of 17 tries for the Colts last season.

While Myhra was kept for another campaign, the Colts traded off the veteran Bert Rechichar to the Pittsburgh Steelers for a future draft choice. Rechichar also is a placekicker, his 56-yarder in 1953 standing as the NFL record.

It was Rechichar's first year with the Colts after a season with Cleveland. With the Colts, he played offensive end, linebacker and fullback.

Mary Downey Cops 19-Hole Tourney Test

16 Players Survive Trans-Mississippi

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barbara Slobe, a pert 20-year-old typist from Waukegan, Ill., Wednesday knocked defending champion Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa, from the 30th annual Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Miss Slobe, the 1958 Illinois women's champion, was 3 and 2 winner over Mrs. Johnstone, a 1960 Curtis Cup team member, in the second round of the tournament.

Miss Slobe shared honors for the day with two youngsters — Sandra Haynie of Austin, Tex., and Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn. —as the field was reduced to 16.

Miss Haynie, a 17-year-old high school senior, was five under par as she drubbed Mrs. Bert Craig of Cincinnati, 7 and 6. Mrs. Craig Tuesday eliminated Carol Mann of Flossmoor, Ill., the tournament medalist.

Miss Eller, a member of the 1960 Curtis Cup team, was three under par in a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. R. E. Mueller of Cincinnati.

The defeat of Mrs. Johnstone left Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, Md., as the only former Trans-Miss titleholder still in the field and Miss Downey had to go 19 holes to defeat Diana Hoke of Pittsburgh, Pa., 1 up.

St. Louis Hurler's Condition Is "Fair"

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Pitcher Robert John Duliba of the St. Louis Cardinals was described in "fair" condition Wednesday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Tuesday night.

Three other persons were killed in the two-car crash.

Duliba, 25, of Glen Lyon, Pa., and his wife were driving to Kansas City, Kan., for the wedding of a teammate, Ray Sadecki.

Mrs. Duliba's condition also was described as "fair."

Duliba suffered fractured ribs, multiple lacerations and a kidney injury.

Six golfers won both the U. S. Open and Amateur crowns the same year.

Blackwell, Rousch Enter Hall Of Fame

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ewell Blackwell, who pitched 16 consecutive victories for the Cincinnati Reds in 1947, and Eddie Rousch, who led the National League in batting in 1917 with an average of .341, were elected Wednesday to the Cincinnati Baseball Hall of Fame.

Blackwell, who lives in Tampa, Fla., and Rousch, of Oakland City, Ind., will be honored at Crosley Field Tuesday. They will be inducted officially into the Reds' Hall of Fame in ceremonies at home plate.

Lee Walls, outfielder obtained by Cincinnati from the Cubs last December, hit only .256 in 1959 but in 1958 he hit .304 and drove 24 homers.

Souchak And Wall Share Favorite's Role In Western

DETROIT (UPI) — Defending champion Mike Souchak and Art Wall, Jr., who developed their golfing skills on the rugged hillsides of Pennsylvania's coal country, share the favorite's role in the 57th annual Western Open which gets underway here Thursday at the Western Golf Club.

The two natives of the Keystone State have been the hottest competitors on the tour in recent tournaments and are expected to lead the way for the field of 162 entered in the $25,000 tourney.

Souchak, who won last year's Western at Pittsburgh with a final round 65, is given a strong chance to become the sixth golfer in history to successfully defend the coveted Western crown.

Wright Is Upset In Publinx Golf

HONOLULU (AP) — Defending champion Bill Wright of Seattle was eliminated Wednesday by Honolulu ace Owen Douglass 3 and 2 in a first-round match of the National Amateur Public Links Golf Championship at Ala Wai course.

Douglass, Hawaiian Open champion, shared medalist honors Tuesday with a 146 in qualifying rounds.

Wright, 23-year-old Western Washington College student was rusty after recently completing a six-month Army hitch. He also was disturbed because a thief stole $85 and his clothes from a hotel room his first night in town.

Don Essig III, Indianapolis, the 1957 champion, weathered a late rally by Tom Jenkins, Jacksonville, Fla., for a 2 and 1 victory.

Right hander Mickey Sinks led Michigan State pitchers this spring with 8 victories in 11 decisions. He had a 1.64 earned run record.

Myhra Signs With Colts

Trade Rechichar To Pittsburgh

BALTIMORE (AP) — Steve Myhra, substitute offensive guard and regular placekicker, signed Wednesday for his fourth season with the Baltimore Colts.

He kicked a famous 20-yard field goal two years ago in the National Football League championship game with the New York Giants. It tied the score 17-17 seven seconds before the end of the fourth quarter. The Colts went on to score a touchdown in the first championship football overtime and win the title 23-17.

Myhra booted 50 out of 51 extra points and six field goals out of 17 tries for the Colts last season.

While Myhra was kept for another campaign, the Colts traded off the veteran Bert Rechichar to the Pittsburgh Steelers for a future draft choice. Rechichar also is a placekicker, his 56-yarder in 1953 standing as the NFL record.

It was Rechichar's first year with the Colts after a season with Cleveland. With the Colts, he played offensive end, linebacker and fullback.

Mary Downey Cops 19-Hole Tourney Test

16 Players Survive Trans-Mississippi

CINCINNATI (AP) — Barbara Slobe, a pert 20-year-old typist from Waukegan, Ill., Wednesday knocked defending champion Mrs. Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa, from the 30th annual Trans-Mississippi Golf Tournament.

Miss Slobe, the 1958 Illinois women's champion, was 3 and 2 winner over Mrs. Johnstone, a 1960 Curtis Cup team member, in the second round of the tournament.

Miss Slobe shared honors for the day with two youngsters — Sandra Haynie of Austin, Tex., and Judy Eller of Old Hickory, Tenn. —as the field was reduced to 16.

Miss Haynie, a 17-year-old high school senior, was five under par as she drubbed Mrs. Bert Craig of Cincinnati, 7 and 6. Mrs. Craig Tuesday eliminated Carol Mann of Flossmoor, Ill., the tournament medalist.

Miss Eller, a member of the 1960 Curtis Cup team, was three under par in a 5 and 4 victory over Mrs. R. E. Mueller of Cincinnati.

The defeat of Mrs. Johnstone left Mary Ann Downey of Baltimore, Md., as the only former Trans-Miss titleholder still in the field and Miss Downey had to go 19 holes to defeat Diana Hoke of Pittsburgh, Pa., 1 up.

St. Louis Hurler's Condition Is "Fair"

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)—Pitcher Robert John Duliba of the St. Louis Cardinals was described in "fair" condition Wednesday from injuries suffered in an automobile accident Tuesday night.

Three other persons were killed in the two-car crash.

Duliba, 25, of Glen Lyon, Pa., and his wife were driving to Kansas City, Kan., for the wedding of a teammate, Ray Sadecki.

Mrs. Duliba's condition also was described as "fair."

Duliba suffered fractured ribs, multiple lacerations and a kidney injury.

Six golfers won both the U. S. Open and Amateur crowns the same year.

Blackwell, Rousch Enter Hall Of Fame

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Ewell Blackwell, who pitched 16 consecutive victories for the Cincinnati Reds in 1947, and Eddie Rousch, who led the National League in batting in 1917 with an average of .341, were elected Wednesday to the Cincinnati Baseball Hall of Fame.

Blackwell, who lives in Tampa, Fla., and Rousch, of Oakland City, Ind., will be honored at Crosley Field Tuesday. They will be inducted officially into the Reds' Hall of Fame in ceremonies at home plate.

Lee Walls, outfielder obtained by Cincinnati from the Cubs last December, hit only .256 in 1959 but in 1958 he hit .304 and drove 24 homers.

Souchak And Wall Share Favorite's Role In Western

DETROIT (UPI) — Defending champion Mike Souchak and Art Wall, Jr., who developed their golfing skills on the rugged hillsides of Pennsylvania's coal country, share the favorite's role in the 57th annual Western Open which gets underway here Thursday at the Western Golf Club.

The two natives of the Keystone State have been the hottest competitors on the tour in recent tournaments and are expected to lead the way for the field of 162 entered in the $25,000 tourney.

Souchak, who won last year's Western at Pittsburgh with a final round 65, is given a strong chance to become the sixth golfer in history to successfully defend the coveted Western crown.

Wright Is Upset In Publinx Golf

HONOLULU (AP) — Defending champion Bill Wright of Seattle was eliminated Wednesday by Honolulu ace Owen Douglass 3 and 2 in a first-round match of the National Amateur Public Links Golf Championship at Ala Wai course.

Douglass, Hawaiian Open champion, shared medalist honors Tuesday with a 146 in qualifying rounds.

Wright, 23-year-old Western Washington College student was rusty after recently completing a six-month Army hitch. He also was disturbed because a thief stole $85 and his clothes from a hotel room his first night in town.

Don Essig III, Indianapolis, the 1957 champion, weathered a late rally by Tom Jenkins, Jacksonville, Fla., for a 2 and 1 victory.

Right hander Mickey Sinks led Michigan State pitchers this spring with 8 victories in 11 decisions. He had a 1.64 earned run record.

NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 127 of the Charter of the City of Cumberland, Maryland, (1950 Edition), notice is hereby given that the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland did, in regular session Tuesday, July 5, 1960, approve the Report of Commissioners for the closing of an unnamed ten (10) foot alley running in a Southwesterly direction from Lowell Avenue along the rear of Lots Nos. 38 through 42 in northeastern addition to the City of Cumberland, a distance of approximately one hundred forty (140) feet.

After meeting on the premises (10:30 a. m., June 28, 1960) and remaining there for a period in excess of one-half (½) hour; and after considering the entire matter and all persons who were heard at the time and place heretofore mentioned; and after walking over the entire area, the following was the unanimous opinion of the commissioners appointed to close the aforementioned unnamed ten (10) foot alley:

Giles Praises National Loop Wrecking Crew

Wins Demonstrate League's Strength

By FRED DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League President Warren Giles Wednesday congratulated Manager Walt Alston and his victorious senior circuit wrecking crew for two All-Star victories "that certainly demonstrate the great strength of our league."

"The pendulum was swung all the way since the American League dominated the early All-Star games," said Giles after Wednesday's 6-0 triumph. "We've won three of the last four All-Star games and nine of the last 13. We think it's a very good thing for baseball."

Pitching Brilliant

Alston, holding court before a throng of writers in the managers' office of the visiting dressing room at Yankee Stadium, paid high tribute to fence-busters Ed Mathews, Willie Mays, Ken Boyer and, of course, old pro Stan Musial. But he also pointed out "the brilliant pitching we got" in both games.

"I wanted every player on the squad to get into at least one of the games," said Alston. "And I planned to use five or six pitchers today just like I wound up doing.

"Because Law pitched two-thirds of an inning on Monday, I didn't want to work him more than two innings today," he explained. "Then I decided to go right along and use five or six of 'em."

Alston shrugged when asked whether he had special pitching instructions for Roger Maris, who has hit 27 homers in American League competition this year but who was retired with the bases filled and two out Wednesday in both the third and eighth innings.

"Naw," he said, "I don't know anything more about pitching to Maris than anybody else does."

Alston said he was not thinking of pulling Johnny Podres out of the game when the Dodgers left-hander yielded a single to Ron Hansen and then filled the bases with two walks in the third. Alston went to the mound for a conference with Podres and then left him in the game.

Podres Was Nervous

"I just wanted to know if his back was bothering him," Alston said.

"He surprised me when he told me he was just nervous. I told him, 'Hell, you've pitched in World Series games, what is there to be nervous about?'"

Maris Coldest, Leaves Seven Men Stranded

Mays And Musial Given Tributes

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — "They were hot and we were cold — there's not that much difference between the two leagues."

Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, who managed the American League All - Stars in two straight defeats by the National League in a span of three days, said it first but it was echoed right down the line from veteran Ted Williams to rookie Ron Hansen after the slugging Nationals rang up a 6-0 victory Wednesday.

"We had our chances to do something today," Lopez said. "But Roger Maris of the Yankees was cold. So was Minnie Minoso. So were a lot of guys we hoped would hit."

Tributes For Mays

But there were tributes, too, for the National Leaguers who did get hot — Willie Mays of the Giants in particular.

"Everything we threw to him was wrong," said Lopez, with a wry grin.

Whitey Ford of the Yankees, who fed a fast ball to Eddie Mathews of the Braves for a two-run homer in the second, tossed Willie a curve for another homer in the third.

"Willie reached out on an outside pitch," said Whitey. "Any ordinary hitter would have hit to center or even to right. But Willie got around so fast he pulled it into the seats in left. He's just great."

"How about that Musial?" said Gerry Staley of the White Sox, whose old St. Louis buddy—Stan Musial—clipped him for a seventh inning homer. "He's still dangerous isn't he? I gave him a sinker, a little on the inside, and it went!"

Strands 7 Runners

Maris, who stranded seven base runners with his failure to hit in the clutch, complained about the background of white shirts in center field. Usually a section of center field seats in Yankee Stadium is blocked off by a dark screen to improve a batter's vision but the screen was removed Wednesday to accommodate the large bleacher crowd.

"This is a tough park for me to hit in when that screen is down," he said. "Podres (Johnny Podres of the Dodgers) threw me a slider with the bases loaded in the third and I hit under it, fouling out. In the seventh, I don't know what I swung at but it was an easy out."

Redmen Beat The Bowler

Meeks' Three-Run Homer Wins, 7-5

NATIONAL DIVISION

	W.	L.	Pct.
Redmen	7	1	.875
The Bowler	7	3	.700
Post's	5	5	.500
Baldies	4	5	.444

Keech's	1	8	.111

The Redmen took a one-game lead in the National Division of the Rec Softball League by beating The Bowler yesterday in an eight-inning battle at Stitcher Field by the score of 7-5.

The score was knotted at 4-4 at the end of the regulation seven innings and in the extra stanza Fred Meeks settled the issue by slamming a three-run homer. Frank Young and Dick Young had walked before Meeks teed off.

Giles Praises National Loop Wrecking Crew

Wins Demonstrate League's Strength

By FRED DOWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — National League President Warren Giles Wednesday congratulated Manager Walt Alston and his victorious senior circuit wrecking crew for two All-Star victories "that certainly demonstrate the great strength of our league."

"The pendulum was swung all the way since the American League dominated the early All-Star games," said Giles after Wednesday's 6-0 triumph. "We've won three of the last four All-Star games and nine of the last 13. We think it's a very good thing for baseball."

Pitching Brilliant

Alston, holding court before a throng of writers in the managers' office of the visiting dressing room at Yankee Stadium, paid high tribute to fence-busters Ed Mathews, Willie Mays, Ken Boyer and, of course, old pro Stan Musial. But he also pointed out "the brilliant pitching we got" in both games.

"I wanted every player on the squad to get into at least one of the games," said Alston. "And I planned to use five or six pitchers today just like I wound up doing.

"Because Law pitched two-thirds of an inning on Monday, I didn't want to work him more than two innings today," he explained. "Then I decided to go right along and use five or six of 'em."

Alston shrugged when asked whether he had special pitching instructions for Roger Maris, who has hit 27 homers in American League competition this year but who was retired with the bases filled and two out Wednesday in both the third and eighth innings.

"Naw," he said. "I don't know anything more about pitching to Maris than anybody else does."

Alston said he was not thinking of pulling Johnny Podres out of the game when the Dodgers left-hander yielded a single to Ron Hansen and then filled the bases with two walks in the third. Alston went to the mound for a conference with Podres and then left him in the game.

Podres Was Nervous

"I just wanted to know if his back was bothering him," Alston said.

"He surprised me when he told me he was just nervous. I told him, 'Hell, you've pitched in World Series games, what is there to be nervous about?'"

Maris Coldest, Leaves Seven Men Stranded

Mays And Musial Given Tributes

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK (UPI) — "They were hot and we were cold — there's not that much difference between the two leagues."

Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox, who managed the American League All - Stars in two straight defeats by the National League in a span of three days, said it first but it was echoed right down the line from veteran Ted Williams to rookie Ron Hansen after the slugging Nationals rang up a 6-0 victory Wednesday.

"We had our chances to do something today," Lopez said. "But Roger Maris of the Yankees was cold. So was Minnie Minoso. So were a lot of guys we hoped would hit."

Tributes For Mays

But there were tributes, too, for the National Leaguers who did get hot — Willie Mays of the Giants in particular.

"Everything we threw to him was wrong," said Lopez, with a wry grin.

Whitey Ford of the Yankees, who fed a fast ball to Eddie Mathews of the Braves for a two-run homer in the second, tossed Willie a curve for another homer in the third.

"Willie reached out on an outside pitch," said Whitey. "Any ordinary hitter would have hit to center or even to right. But Willie got around so fast he pulled it into the seats in left. He's just great."

"How about that Musial?" said Gerry Staley of the White Sox, whose old St. Louis buddy—Stan Musial—clipped him for a seventh inning homer. "He's still dangerous isn't he? I gave him a sinker, a little on the inside, and it went!"

Strands 7 Runners

Maris, who stranded seven base runners with his failure to hit in the clutch, complained about the background of white shirts in center field. Usually a section of center field seats in Yankee Stadium is blocked off by a dark screen to improve a batter's vision but the screen was removed Wednesday to accommodate the large bleacher crowd.

"This is a tough park for me to hit in when that screen is down," he said. "Podres (Johnny Podres of the Dodgers) threw me a slider with the bases loaded in the third and I hit under it, fouling out. In the seventh, I don't know what I swung at but it was an easy out."

French Open Title Is Won By DeVicenzo

Johnston Posts 278, Three Strokes Back

PARIS (UPI)—Roberto DeVicenzo of Mexico turned in a "Palmer method" comeback to win the French Open golf championship Wednesday with a seven-under-par 65 in the final round.

Six strokes behind at the end of Tuesday's 36-hole grind and three strokes behind at the end of this morning's third round, DeVicenzo won the title with a burst of nine birdies in the final round for a 72-hole total of 275.

It was the same type of comeback that Arnold Palmer staged in winning the U.S. National Open championship last month. Palmer, of Ligonier, Pa., was denied permission to compete in the French Open when his entry arrived too late.

Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, who led the field after the second round, finished with a 278 to tie Leopold Ruiz of Argentina for the runner-up spot — three strokes back of DeVicenzo.

Johnston had a 72 in the third round Wednesday morning and added a 70 in the afternoon. He remained in contention until the 14th hole of the final round when he missed an eight-foot birdie putt and then flubbed a three-foot putt on the next green.

Australia's Peter Thomson, who shot a 67 Wednesday morning to grab a one-stroke lead over Johnston, finished with a 72 to share fourth place with Sebastian Miguel of Spain at 279.

DeVicenzo started his thrilling rally with five birdies on the front nine of the final round for a 31. That put him three strokes ahead of Thomson. DeVicenzo then added four more birdies on the back nine for a 34.

Marlins Expect To Lose $125,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — William MacDonald, owner of the last place Miami Marlins of the Class AAA International League, said Wednesday he expects to lose $125,000 on the team this season.

MacDonald, who bought the Marlins last December, said if he "could have foreseen how bad things were going to be, I never would have touched it.

"I didn't expect to make money but I hoped the operation for the first two years could break even," he told the Miami News in an interview.

He said his working agreement with the Baltimore Orioles has not helped him in getting players.

"The players who could help us aren't for sale so we find our hands tied," he said.

Rams Sign Guzik For Two Seasons

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Elroy Hirsch, general manager for the Los Angeles Rams, announced Wednesday that linebacker John Guzik has returned signed contracts for the 1960 and 1961 seasons.

Guzik, 23, an All-America guard at the University of Pittsburgh in 1958, joined the Rams last fall and played left and middle linebacker positions. He started several games in the latter part of the seasons when offensive line man Les Richter's injuries forced him to move to center.

Although Guzik had another year of eligibility remaining at Pitt, he was selected on the fourth round of the 1957 draft. He also was named to the 1959 college all star squad and participated in that team's game against the Baltimore Colts last summer.

"I RE-GREW HAIR"

WARREN FEATHERS, Claysburg, Penna.

Mr. Feathers gives his own case history: "I'd about given up hope of ever having a good head of hair. A friend suggested I go see the Lesley consultant when he came to town for a regular visit. What I liked was that he didn't make a whole lot of claims and promises even before I took off my hat.

"He examined my hair and scalp, and said people with conditions a lot like mine had showed improvement. He started me on a series of treatments that I applied myself at home. I can't talk for anybody else, but I can say that for me the results speak for themselves."

"I RE-GREW HAIR, TOO"

SANDY CURREN, Niles, Ohio

Miss Curren recommends Lesley organization: "No one likes to lose hair, especially a woman. I did know that worry wouldn't stop hair loss, so I decided to do something. The Lesley consultant examined my scalp. He told me my condition could be helped if I followed his instruction. It only took a few minutes a day, so I did. Now I don't just have good healthy hair, but my whole outlook on life is brighter. As you can imagine, I recommend the Lesley organization."

Hair Specialist Here Tomorrow; Will Show How To Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

New home treatment methods for saving and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Cumberland, Maryland, on Friday, July 15, 1960 only. Mr. F. I. Brodie, representing the Lesley Hair and Scalp Specialists, will personlly examine hair-worried men and women from 1:00 to 8:00 P.M. tomorrow at the Hotel Ft. Cumberland.

The Lesley Specialists point out that remarkable results have been attained by means of a personal examination followed by simple individual treatments that anyone can easily carry out in the privacy of his or her own home. Regular checkups in your city by a Lesley Specialist assure success in the minimum period of time.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself to ease your mind of hair worries by learning how to save and thicken your hair at home. We will tell you frankly and sincerely whether or not you can be helped, how long it will take and how much it will cost. We do not accept cases that will not respond. The cost of our treatments are appreciably lower than most treatments of this type.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

The Lesley Organization urges that you do not resign yourself to a future without hair.

When you first notice your hair thinning, brought on usually by dandruff, itching, dryness, oiliness or follicles clogged with sebum or seborrhea, take positive action at once. See a Hair & Scalp Specialist.

Of course, we must have a client who still has some hair. If a person is completely bald, he waited too long and is refused treatment. However, if your scalp is still producing short hair it is possible to at least save and thicken what you have.

Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

SATISFACTION FOR 96.3%

Last year, the Lesley Organization was able to satisfy 96.3% of its clients. That is a noteworthy record, and we are justifiably proud of it.

HOPELESS CASES REFUSED

Lesley Hair and Scalp Specialists have established a very high reputation in the field for refusing any case that does not fall under the scope of its work. In the majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss (a condition sometimes described as male pattern baldness — has been identified as such), Lesley treatment is of little or no value, and again we state LESLEY WILL CONTINUE ITS POLICY OF REFUSING ALL HOPELESS CASES.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

The Lesley Organization gives a written guarantee when you are accepted for a scalp treatment. You must be satisfied within Guarantee Period or money will be refunded.

DON'T PUT IT OFF

Do yourself a favor. It takes less than 20 minutes for your free examination.

Stop by the Hotel Ft. Cumberland Friday, only, July 15, between 1:00 P.M. and 8:00 P.M. Ask at the desk for Mr. Brodie's room number. He does not work by appointment. Come at your convenience. Examinations are given privately. You will not be obligated or embarrassed in any way.

NO TREATMENT OF ANY KIND IS ADMINISTERED AT THE CLINIC.

French Open Title Is Won By DeVicenzo

Johnston Posts 278, Three Strokes Back

PARIS (UPI)—Roberto DeVicenzo of Mexico turned in a "Palmer method" comeback to win the French Open golf championship Wednesday with a seven-under-par 65 in the final round.

Six strokes behind at the end of Tuesday's 36-hole grind and three strokes behind at the end of this morning's third round, DeVicenzo won the title with a burst of nine birdies in the final round for a 72-hole total of 275.

It was the same type of comeback that Arnold Palmer staged in winning the U.S. National Open championship last month. Palmer, of Ligonier, Pa., was denied permission to compete in the French Open when his entry arrived too late.

Bill Johnston of Provo, Utah, who led the field after the second round, finished with a 278 to tie Leopold Ruiz of Argentina for the runner-up spot — three strokes back of DeVicenzo.

Johnston had a 72 in the third round Wednesday morning and added a 70 in the afternoon. He remained in contention until the 14th hole of the final round when he missed an eight-foot birdie putt and then flubbed a three-foot putt on the next green.

Australia's Peter Thomson, who shot a 67 Wednesday morning to grab a one-stroke lead over Johnston, finished with a 72 to share fourth place with Sebastian Miguel of Spain at 279.

DeVicenzo started his thrilling rally with five birdies on the front nine of the final round for a 31. That put him three strokes ahead of Thomson. DeVicenzo then added four more birdies on the back nine for a 34.

Marlins Expect To Lose $125,000

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — William MacDonald, owner of the last place Miami Marlins of the Class AAA International League, said Wednesday he expects to lose $125,000 on the team this season.

MacDonald, who bought the Marlins last December, said if he "could have foreseen how bad things were going to be, I never would have touched it.

"I didn't expect to make money but I hoped the operation for the first two years could break even," he told the Miami News in an interview.

He said his working agreement with the Baltimore Orioles has not helped him in getting players.

"The players who could help us aren't for sale so we find our hands tied," he said.

Rams Sign Guzik For Two Seasons

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —Elroy Hirsch, general manager for the Los Angeles Rams, announced Wednesday that linebacker John Guzik has returned signed contracts for the 1960 and 1961 seasons.

Guzik, 23, an All-America guard at the University of Pittsburgh in 1958, joined the Rams last fall and played left and middle linebacker positions. He started several games in the latter part of the seasons when offensive line man Les Richter's injuries forced him to move to center.

Although Guzik had another year of eligibility remaining at Pitt, he was selected on the fourth round of the 1957 draft. He also was named to the 1959 college all star squad and participated in that team's game against the Baltimore Colts last summer.

"I RE-GREW HAIR"

WARREN FEATHERS, Claysburg, Penna.

Mr. Feathers gives his own case history: "I'd about given up hope of ever having a good head of hair. A friend suggested I go see the Lesley consultant when he came to town for a regular visit. What I liked was that he didn't make a whole lot of claims and promises even before I took off my hat.

"He examined my hair and scalp, and said people with conditions a lot like mine had showed improvement. He started me on a series of treatments that I applied myself at home. I can't talk for anybody else, but I can say that for me the results speak for themselves."

"I RE-GREW HAIR, TOO"

SANDY CURREN, Niles, Ohio

Miss Curren recommends Lesley organization: "No one likes to lose hair, especially a woman. I did know that worry wouldn't stop hair loss, so I decided to do something. The Lesley consultant examined my scalp. He told me my condition could be helped if I followed his instruction. It only took a few minutes a day, so I did. Now I don't just have good healthy hair, but my whole outlook on life is brighter. As you can imagine, I recommend the Lesley organization."

Hair Specialist Here Tomorrow; Will Show How To Save Hair and Prevent Baldness

New home treatment methods for saving and improving its growth will be demonstrated in Cumberland, Maryland, on Friday, July 15, 1960 only. Mr. F. I. Brodie, representing the Lesley Hair and Scalp Specialists, will personlly examine hair-worried men and women from 1:00 to 8:00 P.M. tomorrow at the Hotel Ft. Cumberland.

The Lesley Specialists point out that remarkable results have been attained by means of a personal examination followed by simple individual treatments that anyone can easily carry out in the privacy of his or her own home. Regular checkups in your city by a Lesley Specialist assure success in the minimum period of time.

EXAMINE YOU FREE

We want to make it clear that you incur absolutely no charge or obligation by coming in for an examination.

Your only obligation is to yourself to ease your mind of hair worries by learning how to save and thicken your hair at home. We will tell you frankly and sincerely whether or not you can be helped, how long it will take and how much it will cost. We do not accept cases that will not respond. The cost of our treatments are appreciably lower than most treatments of this type.

WHO CAN BE HELPED?

The Lesley Organization urges that you do not resign yourself to a future without hair.

When you first notice your hair thinning, brought on usually by dandruff, itching, dryness, oiliness or follicles clogged with sebum or seborrhea, take positive action at once. See a Hair & Scalp Specialist.

Of course, we must have a client who still has some hair. If a person is completely bald, he waited too long and is refused treatment. However, if your scalp is still producing short hair it is possible to at least save and thicken what you have.

Some conditions, such as "spot baldness" usually have complete coverage if caught in time!

SATISFACTION FOR 96.3%

Last year, the Lesley Organization was able to satisfy 96.3% of its clients. That is a noteworthy record, and we are justifiably proud of it.

HOPELESS CASES REFUSED

Lesley Hair and Scalp Specialists have established a very high reputation in the field for refusing any case that does not fall under the scope of its work. In the majority of cases of baldness and excessive hair loss (a condition sometimes described as male pattern baldness — has been identified as such!), Lesley treatment is of little or no value, and again we state LESLEY WILL CONTINUE ITS POLICY OF REFUSING ALL HOPELESS CASES.

WRITTEN GUARANTEE

The Lesley Organization gives a written guarantee when you are accepted for a scalp treatment. You must be satisfied within Guarantee Period or money will be refunded.

DON'T PUT IT OFF

Do yourself a favor. It takes less than 20 minutes for your free examination.

Stop by the Hotel Ft. Cumberland Friday, only, July 15, between 1:00 P.M. and 8:00 P.M. Ask at the desk for Mr. Brodie's room number. He does not work by appointment. Come at your convenience. Examinations are given privately. You will not be obligated or embarrassed in any way.

NO TREATMENT OF ANY KIND IS ADMINISTERED AT THE CLINIC.

Allegheny Lines Seeks Capital Stops

Allegheny Airlines, which dropped service here in February, 1959, and is fighting local efforts before the CAB to have flights restored, has offered to service certain eastern and mid-Atlantic state cities which Capital Airlines wants to drop from its route system.

Allegheny President Leslie O. Barnes in a letter to the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, said if Capital's request for a realignment program is granted, both Allegheny and the communities affected would benefit.

Capital, attempting to strengther its financial position, recently asked the CAB to permit its withdrawal from a number of local markets and money-losing routes, including some in West Virginia.

Barnes listed cities in the states of New York, Pennsylvania Ohio and Virginia where Allegheny would replace Capital.

A preliminary hearing on Allegheny's application to quit Cumberland was held several weeks ago. In the meantime, the CAB extended from June 30 to July 15, the time for filing of additional briefs in the case by Allegheny and the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

City Attorney William R. Carscaden said yesterday in all probability it will be 30 days or more after July 15 — Friday — that a decision will be forthcoming from the CAB.

How To 'Rig' A Convention

"We want Roosevelt," shouted the anonymous voice on the loud-speaker at the Chicago Stadium on a hot night in July 1940, and the demonstrators jamming the aisles took up the chant. "Chicago wants Roosevelt." "America needs Roosevelt." "The world needs Roosevelt." It was something like the stylized responsive reading that is college rooting, except that the cheerleader was out of sight—was, indeed, down in a small basement room where the amplifier circuits were centered.

The demonstration was a symbol of what a historian notably sympathetic to the Roosevelt administration, Robert E. Sherwood, has called a "dreadful display of democracy at its tawdriest." Up until the moment of his acceptance Roosevelt refused to say whether he would accept a third nomination. Harry L. Hopkins, who was not even a delegate to the convention, was sent to Chicago to run the Roosevelt show.

The vote on the first ballot was Roosevelt, 946½; Farley, 72½; Garner, 61; Tydings 9½. According to Edward J. Flynn, who was to succeed Farley as national chairman, "They (city leaders) did not support Roosevelt out of any motive of affection or because of any political issues involved, but rather they knew that opposing him would be harmful to their local organizations."

They almost bolted, though, when Hopkins announced that Roosevelt wanted as a running mate Henry A. Wallace. "The delegates were ugly," Farley reports. "They did not want Wallace. Not all their resentment was personal, however. They were showing their resentment against 'bossism'."

Roosevelt, angered at the shambles at Chicago—and at the possibility of being balked—was preparing a speech refusing the nomination. However, the steamroller prevailed and Wallace squeaked through. In withdrawing from the fight for Vice President, Sen. Scott Lucas flatly declared he would not have done so "had this been a free and open convention."

The rigging left scars. But then, don't Democratic conventions usually, whether rigged or free and open as summer air?

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Outmoded

There can be no question but that the convention is an outmoded device for selecting a candidate for President. It was outmoded in 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt battled for the direct primaries. It, today, represents neither a party's choice nor the people's choice. It is a grand fiesta to excite over what has already been arranged.

Here is an enormous gathering of men and women, most of whom have no say in the proceedings and do not even vote as they choose. The galleries are filled with onlookers, visitors, the curious, the gullible. They come to watch the donkeys or the elephants. Most of them have no idea as to what is going on. The heavy contributors and the currently and formerly distinguished sit in special reservations, usually box seats. Everybody has to have a ticket or a badge.

The noise is unbelievable and constant. The lights glare. There is an orchestra which blares and an organ which does not play a Gregorian chant. Those who march in honor of a candidate, not only include the delegates who favor him but also hired marchers who swell his ranks, prolong the pandemonium and excitement, and continue the impression of unrestrained enthusiasm.

Speakers rise to speak. Sometimes they are heard in the convention hall. They are better heard on radio and television. The speeches are never extemporaneous because no politician can risk a slip of the tongue. Besides, he wants his speech printed in the newspapers and commented upon. So he sends it out in advance.

Quietly, without excitement, the great men sit in hotel suites. They come to the convention hall only when it is absolutely necessary. They hold conferences. They meet in committees. They make deals. Whenever a candidate says that he has made no deals, he is literally not telling the truth. The deals are made and they are lived up to. Sometimes a candidate has to avoid the direct conversation; but an intermediary can always be found.

The candidate promotes himself. He is drafted by nobody. He raises his own money. A rich candidate or one that has rich friends or has access to labor union money has an easier time than one who has to watch his nickels and dimes.

As a businesslike institution, the convention is nothing at all. It ought to be abolished. However, no substitute for the convention has been devised because neither of our principal political parties is a membership organization. They are mechanisms for gathering votes for chosen candidates. The Boss system continues in various forms. A politician is more concerned about the opinion of Lawrence of Pennsylvania or DeSapio of New York or Pat Brown of California than he is about hundreds of delegates. In the Democratic Convention, David Dubinsky and Alex Rose matter; Walter Reuther matters. These are the politicians of labor. They have access to enormous labor treasuries and can make promises of support to candidates. Nothing would please them better than to have John Kennedy as the Democratic candidate and Nelson Rockefeller as the Republican candidate. Then they would win no matter who lost.

Other groups are at work at conventions, offering huge blocks of votes. Most of them cannot deliver on the barrel-head but a nervous candidate does not want to risk losing any group that can be satisfied with a bone or a scrap.

Meanwhile there is no deliberation. What is called a Platform is intended to be a statement of principles. A large committee meets to draw up this document. It holds hearings over a prolonged period before the convention and listens to all sorts of ideas, proposals, concepts. But usually three or four knowledgeable men do the writing and their ideas prevail.

The Platform is usually too long for general reading. It covers too wide and too detailed a statement. It rarely has an elevating thought or an emotional paragraph. After all the fuss that is made over it, it is generally forgotten and it is always ignored by those who are elected under its provisions.

This then is the convention. I once had a boy made the page to a candidate. He saw all the machinery at work, closely and intimately. When it was over, I asked him how he liked it. His reply was: "That is not what they taught me at college."

Hard To Stand On Sometimes

Democratic Platform Ignores Personal Rights

By David Lawrence

LOS ANGELES, July 13 — It would require a dictator in the White House to fulfill some of the provisions of the platform recommended to the Democratic National Convention by a majority of its platform committee. Not only does the platform impose on the President-to-be the task of reversing the national "mood," whatever that is, but it proposes, in effect, that employment practices and social customs be changed irrespective of the legal rights of private citizens.

"We have drifted," says the platform, "into a national mood that accepts payola and quiz scandals, tax evasion and false expense accounts, soaring crime rates, influence-peddling in high government circles, and the exploitation of sadistic violence as popular entertainment. For eight long critical years our present national leadership has made no effective effort to reverse this mood."

Just how any administration can set about to change the national mood in every field from entertainment to crime rates, is a little hard to understand. But platforms are noted for their promises of utopia.

The most alarming section, however, of the platform — and one which could cost the Democrats plenty of electoral votes in the South and perhaps in the North — is a provision which practically tells employers they must adopt some system of equality of race, religion and color in choosing their employes. It also tells the private schools they, too, must not discriminate in matters of race or religion or color. Maybe there will be no more exclusively white social clubs in the North if the democratic platform means what it says and if laws are to be passed to remove all forms of discrimination. The platform plank on this reads in part as follows:

"The time has come to assure equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, schoolrooms, jobs, housing and public facilities."

The clause "equal access to all areas of community life" is the most sweeping ever proposed in a political platform. There are no exceptions, nor is the word "schoolrooms qualified by the word "public." It is not clear yet how the platform writers came to the conclusion that the Constitution gives Congress the right to pass a law telling a private employer whom he may employ, especially when he isn't engaged in any government contract work. Yet the platform plank says:

"The new Democratic Administration will support federal legislation establishing a fair employment practices commission effectively to secure for everyone the right to equal opportunity for employment." Does this mean that, unless an equal number of Negroes and whites are employed or if someone thinks he should have a job for which he isn't really qualified, the employer can be hauled before a commission and made to prove that no discriminatory motive is behind his hiring practices? Does it mean that there must be a proportionately equal number of Protestants, Catholics and Jews in every plant or business establishment in order to fulfill the requirements of "equal access"?

It is clear from the way the platform is written that the authors are not talking only of federal services or work on government contracts. This latter field is separately provided for, and there is, in addition, a broadly phrased paragraph which says:

"A new Democratic Administration will broaden the scope and strengthen the powers of the present (Civil Rights) Commission and make it permanent. Its functions will be to provide assistance to communities, industries, or individuals in the implementation of Constitutional rights in education, housing, employment, transportation, and the administration of justice."

There are neighborhoods in many American cities where racial discrimination prevails. The United States Supreme Court has said the federal and state authorities have no power to enforce "integration" against the wishes of private-property owners. This could become a big issue in the coming campaign. Already the Southern leaders have announced openly that they repudiate the platform. They say in a public statement: "We emphatically repudiate those provisions, do not propose to be bound by them, and respectfully request that the statement of repudiation be entered upon the minutes of the convention and read to the convention upon the presentation of the platform."

The desire of the platform-makers to win the votes of Negro and other minority groups will create new conflict with other groups which have hitherto supported the Democratic ticket. Senator Kennedy, as the party nominee, would be on the spot if asked whether he supports wholeheartedly the provisions of the platform quoted above. If he does, it could cost him the South and some Northern states as well. It may be doubted whether the Republican platform will invade the field of private rights as the Democratic platform has done.

RADIATION PILL — With the public's great fear of radioactive fallout, you will be happy to learn that the Army is developing a pill which will reduce the effects of this danger.

It is not yet ready for use by humans, but has been tested successfully on animals which have been exposed to lethal doses of radiation and then kept alive by use of a drug. The experiments have been conducted for more than two years, but are only a first step toward ultimate development of a pill humans can take without experiencing bad effects.

The drug is a byproduct of research in the field of sulpha chemistry and at present it has a "great toxic effect" on human beings.

Even when fully developed it is not intended to be a complete cure that can be used in place of a fallout shelter. However, it is likely that such a pill will permit humans to remain in shelters for a shorter time after an atomic explosion—days instead of weeks.

WORD COINER — Dr. Herbert F. York is a young man with a big job. Not yet 40, he is the Defense Department's director of research and engineering, and as such is in charge of the U. S. space-age missile program.

Among his other duties, York must appear before Congressional committees from time to time to explain the status of missile work, research, and other matters pertaining to the adaptation of science to military matters.

At a recent appearance before the Senate Appropriations Committee, York was praised highly by Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R), Massachusetts, for his detailed knowledge of the projects being pursued by his office.

Then, in a burst of exuberance, Saltonstall hailed him for "putting two new words in Webster's dictionary."

"I hope your secretary spelled them right," the Senator continued, mentioning the words as "miniaturization" and "microminiaturization."

"I don't believe we want to use those words on the floor in debate," Saltonstall added. "Are you sure you know what they mean?"

York looked surprised, and then with a masterful command of diplomacy turned blank of expression and replied deadpan:

"I'm not sure, but I believe so."

Democrats Have Problem Finding Best Vice Presidential Material

By Drew Pearson

LOS ANGELES—The question of too many young men on the Democratic ticket, the 35-hour week, labor support, and alienation of the solid South all have come up in the backstage huddles over the picking of a Vice Presidential candidate.

One young man proposed for Vice President on the Kennedy ticket is Gov. Orville Freeman of Minnesota, who looks just as youthful as Sen. Jack Kennedy.

"Freeman is too young," Kennedy snorted to his advisers. "We would look like a couple of Rover Boys running for President."

Instead he sounded out Hubert Humphrey, the Minnesota Senator whom Kennedy defeated so decisively in West Virginia. This threatened to break up a 20-year friendship which began when Humphrey and Freeman were struggling through the University of Minnesota and Freeman used to baby-sit for Humphrey, who had come back to college for a second try after the Depression forced him out of school.

Word of the Kennedy-Humphrey talks immediately leaked to Freeman supporters who regarded them as a double cross. For the first time since the Humphrey-Freeman team burst into Minnesota politics, their supporters began quarreling.

Humphrey Nixes V. P.

In the interim, the top labor leaders of the nation had also moved into the backstage huddles on picking a Vice President.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, Auto Workers' boss Walter Reuther and Steelworkers' boss Dave McDonald called upon Kennedy and urged him to take Humphrey as his running mate. They also asked him to endorse a 35-hour work week.

Kennedy flatly refused to come out for a 35-hour week. But he spoke approvingly of Humphrey without giving any final pledge.

Meany also sent a delegation to call on Humphrey, including Reuther, Alex Rose of the Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers, and Joe Keenan of the Electrical Workers.

Reuther contended that Kennedy's political complexion would be determined by his running mate.

"A Kennedy-Johnson or a Kennedy-Symington ticket would be a conservative ticket, but a Kennedy-Humphrey ticket would be a liberal ticket," he said.

Rose, who also heads New York's Liberal Party, chimed in: "We need a liberal ticket to win. Kennedy will lose New York unless he has a strong liberal on the ticket. Adam Powell (the Harlem leader) will be against Kennedy unless his running mate is a strong civil rights man."

"Labor is divided on Kennedy, but we're 100 per cent for Humphrey," agreed Keenan.

Humphrey explained that his old friend, Governor Freeman, wanted the nomination.

"I have had my crack at it. Now it's his turn," Humphrey shrugged. He urged the labor delegation to support his old friend. The labor leaders, however, did just the opposite. They called on Freeman and urged him to step aside for Humphrey. They went away with the impression that he had agreed to do so.

But when Freeman got together with Humphrey later to patch up their differences he still wanted to run for Vice President. Humphrey said their friendship was more important to him than the Vice Presidency, that he wasn't anxious to run himself, and would support Freeman's candidacy.

Outside of the Minnesota delegation, however, labor, farm and Negro leaders are still boosting Humphrey for the second spot.

Note: Humphrey's sparkling wife, Muriel put her foot down when he first toyed with the idea of going after the Vice Presidency.

"I scrubbed floors and you did janitor work to get into public life," she reminded him. "You can be re-elected to the Senate. But if you accept second place on the national ticket, what if the ticket should lose? You would risk your career in public life."

Kennedy Would Hush Sinatra

Sen. Jack Kennedy passed the word through his brother-in-law, movie actor Peter Lawford, that he would rather singer Frank Sinatra didn't throw a party for him in Los Angeles.

Sinatra is an enthusiastic Kennedy booster whose two songwriters, Sammy Cahn and Jimmy van Heusen, wrote the Senator's campaign song, "High Hopes." But Kennedy is worried about Sinatra's association with notorious mobsters and connections with the Las Vegas gambling interests. Sinatra owns 4 per cent of The Sands at Vegas.

Kennedy welcomes Sinatra's support, but just doesn't want it advertised.

Powell Against Kennedy

Handsome, flamboyant Congressman Adam Clayton Powell, the big political power in New York's Harlem, personally phoned all Negro delegates to the Democratic convention in an effort to organize them against Sen. Jack Kennedy.

In his phone pitch, Powell pooh-poohed the publicity over Kennedy's lunch with Thurgood Marshall, chief counsel for the NAACP, and other Negro leaders. Instead, Powell reminded the Negro leaders that Kennedy had breakfasted with Alabama's Gov. John Patterson and Alabama State Senator Sam Englehardt, head of the Alabama White Citizens' Council.

Powell pleaded with the Negro delegates to remember that Patterson, campaigning for governor, had shown a picture of a Negro father knocked down by a white man during the Little Rock, Ark., school crisis and had declared: "That is the way I would treat them."

The Harlem Congressman also charged that Kennedy voted in 1957 to send the civil rights bill to the Senate Judiciary Committee which is run by Mississippi's Sen. Jim Eastland and that Kennedy's failure to join in censuring the late Sen. Joe McCarthy was "indefensible."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

LOS ANGELES — It comes down to the wire now. There is a thunderous belch of sound from the candidates, and it sounds patriotic, but it covers a stomach-sickening fear of Mr. John Kennedy. Everyone here except his protagonists is afraid of him.

They do not fight him openly because he might win and, if he does, no one wants to be a Democrat who kicked Kennedy when the chips were being counted. They nick him obliquely with shots about his stern religion, his mediocre record in Congress, his youth, and the supposed virtues of his father.

There is a joke about Kennedy's youth going the rounds. His rich father is said to have asked: "Jack, what do you want to be in life?" Jack said: "President, Daddy." And the father said: "I know that, Son. I mean, when you grow up."

The headquarters here is the Biltmore Hotel, a red dowager sitting facing Pershing Square. It is in downtown Los Angeles, several miles from Hollywood and Beverly Hills. Once, Pershing Square was the palm-tree hangout for Communists who wanted to be heard. Today, it has a fountain and a lot of old people sitting on benches reading the newspapers from Iowa and Alabama and New Hampshire and Oregon.

The men have red alligator necks and the women have blue hair and big dollar-ninety-eight earrings. They carry shopping bags with souvenirs for their grandchildren and they soak up the hot white sun and dream of how far they are from home.

The convention has brought the weird ones into Pershing Square. They jam the lobby to bursting; they polka-dot the sidewalks. They gape, they nudge, they laugh. They point to the thick black cables strung up the side of the Biltmore, and they say: "television."

A middle-aged man in a toga and sandals does a Charleston in front of the hotel. An old man, bald enough to reflect sunlight, holds up an open Bible in his hands and shouts to the crowd: "Get in touch with Christ!" Behind his head, a building carries a roof sign: "Come Worship the Lord." The church page of a local paper runs an ad for a sermon entitled "If Jesus were a Delegate."

There are pretty girls in the crowd. They wear straw boaters and they smile at the people and say: "Kennedy: who else?" A mob of chanters starts a Japanese snake dance in front of the hotel, hollering in unison: "Adlai, Adlai — he's our man — if he can't do it, nobody can."

On the street, everybody wears a button. Some wear two or three. Douglas Edwards of CBS tries twice to get into the lobby, can't make it, and walks through an alley. In the cellar is a big press room with all the high-priced reporters in the country. Each paper, each wire service, has its fenced-in room.

Across the street, 22 motorcycles stand ready to escort the candidates to the convention hall. The delegates spent all day Sunday having a ball. They were out with their women sipping exotic drinks, eating Oriental food, and asking "Which way is Hollywood?"

In the lobby is a rear staircase with a mezzanine platform. A group of wild Southerners took this over and displayed their placards: "Keep faith with Faubus." In the cellar is a television conference room with brazen lights, dozing cameras, and a blackboard sign proclaiming when the next candidate will be ready to sound off on whatever issues will further his chances, or hurt someone else's.

There was a girl in a blue dress covered with Chinese writing in yellow. She kept passing the hotel until everybody got a look.

None of the delegates appear to be personally hurt by Harry Truman's decision to take a walk. They merely repeat the news, and shrug. Not so long ago, these were the men who said he was the greatest fighting President of this century. Now they write him off and ask how much it will cost to take a cab to Don the Beachcomber's.

All conventions are shameless, brazen parties. Everyone is away from home, away from supervision, and the keynote is not the national interest, but fun. I have never attended one in which modesty has any place, or good manners either.

Tomorrow the hangovers will be monumental. Flags will flutter in the breeze and hoarse men will shout that this is the time for all good Americans to stand up and be counted. They will win applause, provided that they don't ask the delegates to stand. . .

Medical Philosophy Of 'Natural' Childbirth

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Marriage represents a new way of living for the bride and the first pregnancy is likely to be mixed with anxiety and concern. After all, it is a big step from adolescence, high school, and college. Let's face it: Her figure changes, the tissues become puffy, morning nausea occurs, and other conditions interfere with the woman's pleasure and free time.

Some concern is normal, even though many mothers-to-be do a good job of covering up their fears. A few are resentful about pregnancy whereas others bubble with enthusiasm. Many obstetricians keep their fingers crossed when there are no complaints because the woman may be repressing her true feelings.

Nowadays, natural childbirth is advocated. The method is aimed at making the birth of a baby a happy, rewarding, and exciting experience as well as a safe one. Fear is banished through education and many physicians and clinics run classes for their pregnant patients and their husbands.

Misunderstandings concerning the inevitability of pain are corrected. Contractions of the uterus may be uncomfortable and stretching of the tissues may be difficult to endure. But it is surprising how well these discomforts are tolerated when the expectant mother knows what is happening and why.

Certain exercises to strengthen and gain control of the muscles used in delivery are taught. The need for conscious awareness during labor must be appreciated so that a more active part can be taken in the delivery. The pregnant woman also learns that anesthesia never is denied when needed or requested and that she is not required to deliver the baby spontaneously at the expense of damage to herself and the child.

There are many variations of this educational program. In some instances the group goes through rehearsals, visits the hospital, sees the labor and delivery rooms, and talks to the nurses.

Fear stems from ignorance. It is normal during pregnancy but can be dispelled through education.

UNCONTROLLABLE SLEEP

E. G. writes: Is narcolepsy considered a form of epilepsy?

REPLY

Both are neurological disorders but in narcolepsy there is an uncontrollable desire to sleep. Epilepsy is associated with convulsions, blackouts, or periodic bizarre behavior patterns.

ULCER RECURRENCE

T. M. writes: When a duodenal ulcer heals, is it gone for good or can the same one break open again?

REPLY

If the lesion heals, it is gone but a new ulcer may develop in the same area. It is purely academic whether this is the same or a different ulcer.

LUMP IN THROAT

B. A. writes: What could cause an imaginary lump in the throat other than nerves? Two throat specialists have dignosed the lump as nerves but it is very real to me.

REPLY

The sensation usually stems from tense throat muscles.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Since World War I, points out Arthur Salemme, many cities in Eastern Europe have, through capture or legislation, been shifted across international borders. Such a city, for example, was the German city of Lemburg, renamed Lwow when it was ceded to Poland in 1919, and renamed again as Lvov when it was incorporated into the Soviet Union.

A schoolboy in 1958 made the mistake of mentioning in class that the real name of the city was Lemburg. The shocked teacher barked, "Pupil Ivanov will march to the front of the class and recite ten times: Pupil will say we're in Lvov!"

"Mother," wailed the daughter of a confirmed beatnik. "I'm getting mighty tired of running around in a circle." "Shut up," rasped the dear, Victorian mother, "or I'll nail your other foot to the floor." (Sick, sick, sick.)

How To 'Rig' A Convention

"We want Roosevelt," shouted the anonymous voice on the loud-speaker at the Chicago Stadium on a hot night in July 1940, and the demonstrators jamming the aisles took up the chant. "Chicago wants Roosevelt." "America needs Roosevelt." "The world needs Roosevelt." It was something like the stylized responsive reading that is college rooting, except that the cheerleader was out of sight—was, indeed, down in a small basement room where the amplifier circuits were centered.

The demonstration was a symbol of what a historian notably sympathetic to the Roosevelt administration, Robert E. Sherwood, has called a "dreadful display of democracy at its tawdriest." Up until the moment of his acceptance Roosevelt refused to say whether he would accept a third nomination. Harry L. Hopkins, who was not even a delegate to the convention, was sent to Chicago to run the Roosevelt show.

The vote on the first ballot was Roosevelt, 946½; Farley, 72½; Garner, 61; Tydings 9½. According to Edward J. Flynn, who was to succeed Farley as national chairman, "They (city leaders) did not support Roosevelt out of any motive of affection or because of any political issues involved, but rather they knew that opposing him would be harmful to their local organizations."

They almost bolted, though, when Hopkins announced that Roosevelt wanted as a running mate Henry A. Wallace. "The delegates were ugly," Farley reports. "They did not want Wallace. Not all their resentment was personal, however. They were showing their resentment against 'bossism'."

Roosevelt, angered at the shambles at Chicago—and at the possibility of being balked—was preparing a speech refusing the nomination. However, the steamroller prevailed and Wallace squeaked through. In withdrawing from the fight for Vice President, Sen. Scott Lucas flatly declared he would not have done so "had this been a free and open convention."

The rigging left scars. But then, don't Democratic conventions usually, whether rigged or free and open as summer air?

These Days

Outmoded

There can be no question but that the convention is an outmoded device for selecting a candidate for President. It was outmoded in 1912 when Theodore Roosevelt battled for the direct primaries. It, today, represents neither a party's choice nor the people's choice. It is a grand fiesta to excite over what has already been arranged.

Here is an enormous gathering of men and women, most of whom have no say in the proceedings and do not even vote as they choose. The galleries are filled with onlookers, visitors, the curious, the gullible. They come to watch the donkeys or the elephants. Most of them have no idea as to what is going on. The heavy contributors and the currently and formerly distinguished sit in special reservations, usually box seats. Everybody has to have a ticket or a badge.

The noise is unbelievable and constant. The lights glare. There is an orchestra which blares and an organ which does not play a Gregorian chant. Those who march in honor of a candidate, not only include the delegates who favor him but also hired marchers who swell his ranks, prolong the pandemonium and excitement, and continue the impression of unrestrained enthusiasm.

Speakers rise to speak. Sometimes they are heard in the convention hall. They are better heard on radio and television. The speeches are never extemporaneous because no politician can risk a slip of the tongue. Besides, he wants his speech printed in the newspapers and commented upon. So he sends it out in advance.

Quietly, without excitement, the great men sit in hotel suites. They come to the convention hall only when it is absolutely necessary. They hold conferences. They meet in committees. They make deals. Whenever a candidate says that he has made no deals, he is literally not telling the truth. The deals are made and they are lived up to. Sometimes a candidate has to avoid the direct conversation; but an intermediary can always be found.

The candidate promotes himself. He is drafted by nobody. He raises his own money. A rich candidate or one that has rich friends or has access to labor union money has an easier time than one who has to watch his nickels and dimes.

As a businesslike institution, the convention is nothing at all. It ought to be abolished. However, no substitute for the convention has been devised because neither of our principal political parties is a membership organization. They are mechanisms for gathering votes for chosen candidates. The Boss system continues in various forms. A politician is more concerned about the opinion of Lawrence of Pennsylvania or DeSapio of New York or Pat Brown of California than he is about hundreds of delegates. In the Democratic Convention, David Dubinsky and Alex Rose matter; Walter Reuther matters. These are the politicians of labor. They have access to enormous labor treasuries and can make promises of support to candidates. Nothing would please them better than to have John Kennedy as the Democratic candidate and Nelson Rockefeller as the Republican candidate. Then they would win no matter who lost.

Other groups are at work at conventions, offering huge blocks of votes. Most of them cannot deliver on the barrel-head but a nervous candidate does not want to risk losing any group that can be satisfied with a bone or a scrap.

Meanwhile there is no deliberation. What is called a Platform is intended to be a statement of principles. A large committee meets to draw up this document. It holds hearings over a prolonged period before the convention and listens to all sorts of ideas, proposals, concepts. But usually three or four knowledgeable men do the writing and their ideas prevail.

The Platform is usually too long for general reading. It covers too wide and too detailed a statement. It rarely has an elevating thought or an emotional paragraph. After all the fuss that is made over it, it is generally forgotten and it is always ignored by those who are elected under its provisions.

This then is the convention. I once had a boy made the page to a candidate. He saw all the machinery at work, closely and intimately. When it was over, I asked him how he liked it. His reply was: "That is not what they taught me at college."

Democratic Platform Ignores Personal Rights

By David Lawrence

LOS ANGELES, July 13 — It would require a dictator in the White House to fulfill some of the provisions of the platform recommended to the Democratic National Convention by a majority of its platform committee. Not only does the platform impose on the President-to-be the task of reversing the national "mood," whatever that is, but it proposes, in effect, that employment practices and social customs be changed irrespective of the legal rights of private citizens.

"We have drifted," says the platform, "into a national mood that accepts payola and quiz scandals, tax evasion and false expense accounts, soaring crime rates, influence-peddling in high government circles, and the exploitation of sadistic violence as popular entertainment. For eight long critical years our present national leadership has made no effective effort to reverse this mood."

Just how any administration can set about to change the national mood in every field from entertainment to crime rates, is a little hard to understand. But platforms are noted for their promises of utopia.

The most alarming section, however, of the platform — and one which could cost the Democrats plenty of electoral votes in the South and perhaps in the North — is a provision which practically tells employers they must adopt some system of equality of race, religion and color in choosing their employes. It also tells the private schools they, too, must not discriminate in matters of race or religion or color. Maybe there will be no more exclusively white social clubs in the North if the democratic platform means what it says and if laws are to be passed to remove all forms of discrimination. The platform plank on this reads in part as follows:

"The time has come to assure equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, schoolrooms, jobs, housing and public facilities."

The clause "equal access to all areas of community life" is the most sweeping ever proposed in a political platform. There are no exceptions, nor is the word "schoolrooms qualified by the word "public." It is not clear yet how the platform writers came to the conclusion that the Constitution gives Congress the right to pass a law telling a private employer whom he may employ, especially when he isn't engaged in any government contract work. Yet the platform plank says:

"The new Democratic Administration will support federal legislation establishing a fair employment practices commission effectively to secure for everyone the right to equal opportunity for employment." Does this mean that, unless an equal number of Negroes and whites are employed or if someone thinks he should have a job for which he isn't really qualified, the employer can be hauled before a commission and made to prove that no discriminatory motive is behind his hiring practices? Does it mean that there must be a proportionately equal number of Protestants, Catholics and Jews in every plant or business establishment in order to fulfill the requirements of "equal access"?

It is clear from the way the platform is written that the authors are not talking only of federal services or work on government contracts. This latter field is separately provided for, and there is, in addition, a broadly phrased paragraph which says:

"A new Democratic Administration will broaden the scope and strengthen the powers of the present (Civil Rights) Commission and make it permanent. Its functions will be to provide assistance to communities, industries, or individuals in the implementation of Constitutional rights in education, housing, employment, transportation, and the administration of justice."

There are neighborhoods in many American cities where racial discrimination prevails. The United States Supreme Court has said the federal and state authorities have no power to enforce "integration" against the wishes of private-property owners. This could become a big issue in the coming campaign. Already the Southern leaders have announced openly that they repudiate the platform. They say in a public statement: "We emphatically repudiate those provisions, do not propose to be bound by them, and respectfully request that the statement of repudiation be entered upon the minutes of the convention and read to the convention upon the presentation of the platform."

The desire of the platform-makers to win the votes of Negro and other minority groups will create new conflict with other groups which have hitherto supported the Democratic ticket. Senator Kennedy, as the party nominee, would be on the spot if asked whether he supports wholeheartedly the provisions of the platform quoted above. If he does, it could cost him the South and some Northern states as well. It may be doubted whether the Republican platform will invade the field of private rights as the Democratic platform has done.

The drug is a byproduct of research in the field of sulpha chemistry and at present it has a "great toxic effect" on human beings.

Even when fully developed it is not intended to be a complete cure that can be used in place of a fallout shelter. However, it is likely that such a pill will permit humans to remain in shelters for a shorter time after an atomic explosion—days instead of weeks.

WORD COINER — Dr. Herbert F. York is a young man with a big job. Not yet 40, he is the Defense Department's director of research and engineering, and as such is in charge of the U. S. space-age missile program.

Among his other duties, York must appear before Congressional committees from time to time to explain the status of missile work, research, and other matters pertaining to the adaptation of science to military matters.

At a recent appearance before the Senate Appropriations Committee, York was praised highly by Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R), Massachusetts, for his detailed knowledge of the projects being pursued by his office.

Then, in a burst of exuberance, Saltonstall hailed him for "putting two new words in Webster's dictionary."

"I hope your secretary spelled them right," the Senator continued, mentioning the words as "miniaturization" and "microminiaturization."

"I don't believe we want to use those words on the floor in debate," Saltonstall added. "Are you sure you know what they mean?"

York looked surprised, and then with a masterful command of diplomacy turned blank of expression and replied deadpan:

"I'm not sure, but I believe so."

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

LOS ANGELES — It comes down to the wire now. There is a thunderous belch of sound from the candidates, and it sounds patriotic, but it covers a stomach-sickening fear of Mr. John Kennedy. Everyone here except his protagonists is afraid of him.

They do not fight him openly because he might win and, if he does, no one wants to be a Democrat who kicked Kennedy when the chips were being counted. They nick him obliquely with shots about his stern religion, his mediocre record in Congress, his youth, and the supposed virtues of his father.

There is a joke about Kennedy's youth going the rounds. His rich father is said to have asked: "Jack, what do you want to be in life?" Jack said: "President, Daddy." And the father said: "I know that, Son. I mean, when you grow up."

The headquarters here is the Biltmore Hotel, a red dowager sitting facing Pershing Square. It is in downtown Los Angeles, several miles from Hollywood and Beverly Hills. Once, Pershing Square was the palm-tree hangout for Communists who wanted to be heard. Today, it has a fountain and a lot of old people sitting on benches reading the newspapers from Iowa and Alabama and New Hampshire and Oregon.

The men have red alligator necks and the women have blue hair and big dollar-ninety-eight earrings. They carry shopping bags with souvenirs for their grandchildren and they soak up the hot white sun and dream of how far they are from home.

The convention has brought the weird ones into Pershing Square. They jam the lobby to bursting; they polka-dot the sidewalks. They gape, they nudge, they laugh. They point to the thick black cables strung up the side of the Biltmore, and they say: "television."

A middle-aged man in a toga and sandals does a Charleston in front of the hotel. An old man, bald enough to reflect sunlight, holds up an open Bible in his hands and shouts to the crowd: "Get in touch with Christ!" Behind his head, a building carries a roof sign: "Come Worship the Lord." The church page of a local paper runs an ad for a sermon entitled "If Jesus were a Delegate."

There are pretty girls in the crowd. They wear straw boaters and they smile at the people and say: "Kennedy: who else?" A mob of chanters starts a Japanese snake dance in front of the hotel, hollering in unison: "Adlai, Adlai — he's our man — if he can't do it, nobody can."

On the street, everybody wears a button. Some wear two or three. Douglas Edwards of CBS tries twice to get into the lobby, can't make it, and walks through an alley. In the cellar is a big press room with all the high-priced reporters in the country. Each paper, each wire service, has its fenced-in room.

Across the street, 22 motorcycles stand ready to escort the candidates to the convention hall. The delegates spent all day Sunday having a ball. They were out with their women sipping exotic drinks, eating Oriental food, and asking "Which way is Hollywood?"

In the lobby is a rear staircase with a mezzanine platform. A group of wild Southerners took this over and displayed their placards: "Keep faith with Faubus." In the cellar is a television conference room with brazen lights, dozing cameras, and a blackboard sign proclaiming when the next candidate will be ready to sound off on whatever issues will further his chances, or hurt someone else's.

There was a girl in a blue dress covered with Chinese writing in yellow. She kept passing the hotel until everybody got a look.

None of the delegates appear to be personally hurt by Harry Truman's decision to take a walk. They merely repeat the news, and shrug. Not so long ago, these were the men who said he was the greatest fighting President of this century. Now they write him off and ask how much it will cost to take a cab to Don the Beachcomber's.

All conventions are shameless, brazen parties. Everyone is away from home, away from supervision, and the keynote is not the national interest, but fun. I have never attended one in which modesty has any place, or good manners either.

Tomorrow the hangovers will be monumental. Flags will flutter in the breeze and hoarse men will shout that this is the time for all good Americans to stand up and be counted. They will win applause, provided that they don't ask the delegates to stand. . .

Medical Philosophy Of 'Natural' Childbirth

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Marriage represents a new way of living for the bride and the first pregnancy is likely to be mixed with anxiety and concern. After all, it is a big step from adolescence, high school, and college. Let's face it: Her figure changes, the tissues become puffy, morning nausea occurs, and other conditions interfere with the woman's pleasure and free time.

Some concern is normal, even though many mothers-to-be do a good job of covering up their fears. A few are resentful about pregnancy whereas others bubble with enthusiasm. Many obstetricians keep their fingers crossed when there are no complaints because the woman may be repressing her true feelings.

Nowadays, natural childbirth is advocated. The method is aimed at making the birth of a baby a happy, rewarding, and exciting experience as well as a safe one. Fear is banished through education and many physicians and clinics run classes for their pregnant patients and their husbands.

Misunderstandings concerning the inevitability of pain are corrected. Contractions of the uterus may be uncomfortable and stretching of the tissues may be difficult to endure. But it is surprising how well these discomforts are tolerated when the expectant mother knows what is happening and why.

Certain exercises to strengthen and gain control of the muscles used in delivery are taught. The need for conscious awareness during labor must be appreciated so that a more active part can be taken in the delivery. The pregnant woman also learns that anesthesia never is denied when needed or requested and that she is not required to deliver the baby spontaneously at the expense of damage to herself and the child.

There are many variations of this educational program. In some instances the group goes through rehearsals, visits the hospital, sees the labor and delivery rooms, and talks to the nurses.

Fear stems from ignorance. It is normal during pregnancy but can be dispelled through education.

UNCONTROLLABLE SLEEP

E. G. writes: Is narcolepsy considered a form of epilepsy?

REPLY

Both are neurological disorders but in narcolepsy there is an uncontrollable desire to sleep. Epilepsy is associated with convulsions, blackouts, or periodic bizarre behavior patterns.

ULCER RECURRENCE

T. M. writes: When a duodenal ulcer heals, is it gone for good or can the same one break open again?

REPLY

If the lesion heals, it is gone but a new ulcer may develop in the same area. It is purely academic whether this is the same or a different ulcer.

LUMP IN THROAT

B. A. writes: What could cause an imaginary lump in the throat other than nerves? Two throat specialists have dignosed the lump as nerves but it is very real to me.

REPLY

The sensation usually stems from tense throat muscles.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of diseases will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Since World War I, points out Arthur Salemme, many cities in Eastern Europe have, through capture or legislation, been shifted across international borders. Such a city, for example, was the German city of Lemburg, renamed Lwow when it was ceded to Poland in 1919, and renamed again as Lvov when it was incorporated into the Soviet Union.

A schoolboy in 1958 made the mistake of mentioning in class that the real name of the city was Lemburg. The shocked teacher barked, "Pupil Ivanov will march to the front of the class and recite ten times: Pupil will say we're in Lvov!"

"Mother," wailed the daughter of a confirmed beatnik. "I'm getting mighty tired of running around in a circle." "Shut up," rasped the dear, Victorian mother, "or I'll nail your other foot to the floor." (Sick, sick, sick.)

Keyser Yeomen Survey Street Signs, Markers

Club's Civic Project Gets Under Way

KEYSER — The preliminary survey being made by the Yeomen Club of Keyser of the need for replacement or repair of local streets signs indicates that approximately 15 per cent of the markers need attention.

Harry J. Reese, president, announced the survey is the first phase of a comprehensive review of street names and workers within the city limits which is being undertaken by Yeomen as a civic project.

Street signs now in place were erected about 10 years ago by the club in cooperation with the City Council. At that time, members secured the posts, the city set them in concrete and purchased the signs and Yeomen attached the signs to the posts and painted them, according to William Wolf, secretary.

The club has voted to pay the expenses of a boy and a girl to the State 4-H Camp at Jackson's Mill in August. They will be selected by the Mineral County agricultural agent.

The club will hold its annual outdoor picnic meeting Monday at 6:30 p. m. at the home of Donald W. Gingerich, 139 South Main Street. Mrs. Gingerich will prepare and serve spaghetti and meatballs with her special sauce.

Ownership Of Cemetery Is Undetermined

The Mayor and City Council of Frostburg has called a meeting with residents of that community to determine the ownership of the Old Percy Cemetery in the west end of Frostburg. The meeting will be held at 7:30 p. m. Monday. Mrs. Fred Robeson is shown standing by one of the older stones in the cemetery which is grown up with bushes, shrubs, trees and berry patches.

Interesting Old Frostburg Cemetery May Be "Adopted" By Town Council

FROSTBURG—The Mayor and Council of Frostburg, at their next meeting Monday at 7:30 p. m., will discuss a problem posed by an old cemetery in the west end of the community.

Known as the Old Percy Cemetery and located at the end of Centennial Street, there are a couple of old-fashioned markers, still in a good state of preservation.

One stone, broken in the middle is in memory of "Phebe" wife of Col. Thomas Blair. She died July 15, 1855 at the age of 88 and was born in 1767 or nine years before the Declaration of Independence of the United States. The stone at the bottom of the marker for Mrs. Blair is the one for her husband. Col. Blair died in 1859 at the age of 89. He was six years old in 1776. Another stone is in memory of John Combs who died July 1, 1859 at the age of 94. He was born in 1765.

Numerous complaints have been received at the City Hall concerning the condition of the cemetery which is grown up in bushes, shrubs, trees and berry bushes. The City Council requests residents interested in the cemetery to attend Monday night's meeting in an effort to determine actual ownership of the cemetery and if the Mayor and Council should take it over and maintain it.

Although the cemetery is well over a hundred years old, there have been interments in it as late as 1955. Some of these later graves have been kept up but others have grown over and have had markers broken and turned over.

According to Mrs. Fred Robeson, who was the former Miss Nancy Tennent, her great-great grandfather is buried there and the cemetery was named after him. Her great grandfather is also buried there, she said.

TV Education Planes Planned

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Westinghouse Corp. has been named to equip and man two planes which will make educational television programs available to millions of students in a six-state Midwest area.

Westinghouse's Air Arm division here will assume technical supervision of the world's first airborne educational TV system. The company was awarded a two-year $2,200,000 contract for the project.

The firm developed the "stratovision" technique which permits television signals to be transmitted from high-flying aircraft. The company will supply the necessary equipment, install it in two DC6 planes and provide the necessary personnel to operate it.

The educational TV program was announced last year by the Midwest Council on Airborn Television Instruction. Assisting the council are the Purdue Research Foundation and Purdue University, where the educational programs will be prepared.

The airborne TV courses will be available to all or parts of Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. They are scheduled to begin on a trial basis in January.

Methodists Schedule Seminar

BUCKHANNON—The West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Church will conduct a "Laboratory School and Seminar for Prospective Laboratory Instructors" at Wesleyan College here, July 24-29.

The school will be one of two such enterprises held in the Northeastern Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church. Ministers, church school superintendents and teachers, and directors of Christian and education from the 12 northeastern states will participate.

Miss Helen L. Stealey of Fairmont, conference director of children's work and director of the school, defined the purpose as "a laboratory experience, providing an opportunity for teachers to learn teaching skills through practice."

Miss Jeanne Rampp of Fairmont, conference director of youth work, will be associate director and Miss Margie McCarty of Nashville, Tenn., member of the Methodist General Board of Education, will be seminar leader.

Age groups and their leadership will include: Miss Vera V. Zimmerman, Board of Education, Nashville, nursery; Mrs. A. M. Dietterich, Maryland, kindergarten and Miss Ottie Branstter, Louisville, primary.

Older groups will include: Miss Martha Bennett, Baltimore school principal, junior; Roy Damonte, Christian education director, Delmar, N. Y., junior high and Brady Whitehead Jr., director of the Wesley Foundation, University of Tennessee, senior high.

Miss Stealey pointed out that teachers better understanding of an age group in a laboratory group where they work with the actual pupils, use resources material and have group discussion of problems.

86 Registered In Liberal Arts

FROSTBURG—Frostburg State Teachers College will have a record enrollment in September, according to Elizabeth Hitchins, registrar in charge of admissions. On July 12 the official number of students who had enrolled was 1,021. Last year's mark excedded the 800's.

Also on hand, said Miss Hitchins, are 38 applications which have not been completely processed and others are coming in daily.

The situation for finding rooms for this "multitude" of new students is serious.

Miss Lillian Wellner released the following report: "887 are now enrolled in the teacher education program. This includes all of the students who have signed a pledge to teach two years after graduation in return for their tuition. Eighty-six have registered in the Liberal Arts program which is being inaugurated this year.

"The Junior College Freshmen Class of last year, Sophomores this year, will graduate, if they desire, next June with a degree of "Associate in Arts" and will be the last class to receive this degree, as the Junior College program has been discontinued. Students registering for Liberal Arts will have the same privileges and may transfer at any time or may complete four years and receive a degree. Forty-eight nurses will attend from Memorial Hospital this fall also which brings the total number of students up to 1,021."

Of the above number 25 are from out of state and President R. Bowen Hardesty has stated that others will be taken as students from the same fringe areas in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Boarding in town this fall will be arranged for 146 women and 27 men who are taking the teacher education program. This is a total of 173. In the Liberal Arts group five women and 13 men will board in town.

Registration by classes will be: Teacher Education — Freshmen 318; Sophomores 288; Juniors 183 and Seniors 98 for a total of 887.

Junior College — Freshmen 53 and Sophomores 33 for a total of 86.

Registration at the Thomas G. Pullen School, the elementary school of the college, will total 306 students — 2' kindergarten; 30 First Grade; 28 Second Grade; 30 Third Grade; 35 Fourth Grade; 30 Fifth Grade and 29 Sixth Grade.

Counting the 1,021 college, 206 Elementary, administration personnel and family; faculty and families and maintenance people and families, the entire college family will number over 2,000 persons. According to college officials, residents of Frostburg should be able to see from that number that "Frostburg State Teachers College" is big business in Frostburg and Allegany County, officials observed.

The desperate need of boarding space for students is emphasized by the figures released.

Frost Hall will normally house 82 students but will have 54 additional ones in it this fall for a total of 136 girls.

Simpson Hall, another girls esidence hall, normally houses 1 but will have an overload of 11 for a total of 132 girls.

Allen Hall, the only boys residence hall will have the same number of occupants as Simpson Hall, 132.

The normal load for all three halls is 264. They will be over loaded 136 for a total of 400.

Miss Hitchins, also stated that space or rooms are needed for approximately 80 girls who have applied for admission to the college in September but have no place to live. She has requested that any persons in Frostburg who have vacant rooms which they would consider renting to one or more girls to call the College, OV 9-6622 and ask for her office.

Wanted: Housework by day or week—Vicinity of Frostburg—OV 9-6598.

Methodists Schedule Seminar

BUCKHANNON—The West Virginia Conference of the Methodist Church will conduct a "Laboratory School and Seminar for Prospective Laboratory Instructors" at Wesleyan College here, July 24-29.

The school will be one of two such enterprises held in the Northeastern Jurisdiction of the Methodist Church. Ministers, church school superintendents and teachers, and directors of Christian and education from the 12 northeastern states will participate.

Miss Helen L. Stealey of Fairmont, conference director of children's work and director of the school, defined the purpose as "a laboratory experience, providing an opportunity for teachers to learn teaching skills through practice."

Miss Jeanne Rampp of Fairmont, conference director of youth work, will be associate director and Miss Margie McCarty of Nashville, Tenn., member of the Methodist General Board of Education, will be seminar leader.

Age groups and their leadership will include: Miss Vera V. Zimmerman, Board of Education, Nashville, nursery; Mrs. A. M. Dietterich, Maryland, kindergarten and Miss Ottie Branstter, Louisville, primary.

Older groups will include: Miss Martha Bennett, Baltimore school principal, junior; Roy Damonte, Christian education director, Delmar, N. Y., junior high and Brady Whitehead Jr., director of the Wesley Foundation, University of Tennessee, senior high.

Miss Stealey pointed out that teachers better understanding of an age group in a laboratory group where they work with the actual pupils, use resources material and have group discussion of problems.

Man Found Guilty Of Killing Game

Two appeal cases involving the killing of wild turkeys and a violation of parole charge against a local man were heard yesterday morning in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the turkey case, two game wardens testified in the appeal of William Whorton from a conviction for possession of a bird out of season.

Whorton had been accused of killing a turkey last April 23 at his home in the eastern section of the county. A neighbor notified Warden Lawrence Fiorita of Hancock and he in turned called Warden Joseph Keating of Frostburg.

The two game officials testified that they went to the home an found turkey feathers on a chopping block, on a porch and near a wood pile.

Both Keating and Fiorita said the feathers were from a wild turkey. Tame turkeys have a different type of feather than the wild species, they said.

In addition, the two men said there was blood on an axe and chopping block. Whorton denied killing a wild turkey.

He said he and his wife had driven into Cumberland that day, visited their daughter in the hospital and then stopped at relatives to visit. They did not return home until 1:30 a. m. the next day.

Earl E. Manges, attorney for Whorton, said no turkey was found at the home and wild turkeys are found in the vicinity of the residence.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris found Whorton guilty and gave him a suspended $50 fine.

In the second appeal case, James Goss, 31, a city worker, entered a plea of guilty to violation of a parole.

Estel Kelley, attorney for Goss, told the court that his client got into trouble when he was drinking and was "part of a triangle" wherein his love for a local woman was unrequited.

During his drinking spells, the accused has been involved in several assault and disorderly conduct cases. Kelley asked the court to allow Goss to leave the city and go to Baltimore where he had relatives and a promise of a job.

The attorney said that if Goss was away from the environment under which he drank and became involved in difficulties with the woman he could rehabilitate himself.

Kelley also stated that Goss has no serious criminal record except for the assaults mentioned. Goss also served in the Navy and Army for a period of seven years, the attorney pointed out.

Judge Harris granted the plea to let Goss go to Baltimore.

Mr. Tennant began working for the late John B. Shannon, October 1, 1894, and has been an employe, partner or owner ever since. In 1917, following the death of the owner, Mr. Tennant and Richard Hamill assumed ownership as partners. Hamill retired in 1957.

Mr. Tennant has turned the store over to his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Robeson who will operate it under the same name and in the same location. Tennant plans to take it easy, gardening, loafing and filling in at the store when needed.

Man Found Guilty Of Killing Game

Two appeal cases involving the killing of wild turkeys and a violation of parole charge against a local man were heard yesterday morning in Allegany County Circuit Court.

In the turkey case, two game wardens testified in the appeal of William Whorton from a conviction for possession of a bird out of season.

Whorton had been accused of killing a turkey last April 23 at his home in the eastern section of the county. A neighbor notified Warden Lawrence Fiorita of Hancock and he in turned called Warden Joseph Keating of Frostburg.

The two game officials testified that they went to the home an found turkey feathers on a chopping block, on a porch and near a wood pile.

Both Keating and Fiorita said the feathers were from a wild turkey. Tame turkeys have a different type of feather than the wild species, they said.

In addition, the two men said there was blood on an axe and chopping block. Whorton denied killing a wild turkey.

He said he and his wife had driven into Cumberland that day, visited their daughter in the hospital and then stopped at relatives to visit. They did not return home until 1:30 a. m. the next day.

Earl E. Manges, attorney for Whorton, said no turkey was found at the home and wild turkeys are found in the vicinity of the residence.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris found Whorton guilty and gave him a suspended $50 fine.

In the second appeal case, James Goss, 31, a city worker, entered a plea of guilty to violation of a parole.

Estel Kelley, attorney for Goss, told the court that his client got into trouble when he was drinking and was "part of a triangle" wherein his love for a local woman was unrequited.

During his drinking spells, the accused has been involved in several assault and disorderly conduct cases. Kelley asked the court to allow Goss to leave the city and go to Baltimore where he had relatives and a promise of a job.

The attorney said that if Goss was away from the environment under which he drank and became involved in difficulties with the woman he could rehabilitate himself.

Kelley also stated that Goss has no serious criminal record except for the assaults mentioned. Goss also served in the Navy and Army for a period of seven years, the attorney pointed out.

Judge Harris granted the plea to let Goss go to Baltimore.

W. Va. Consuming More Soft Drinks

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — West Virginians apparently are smoking more cigarettes and consuming more soft drinks, State Tax Commissioner Don Carman said Wednesday.

Cigarette tax collections the past fiscal year totaled $9.5 million, or 3.9 per cent more than the $9.1 million taken in during the 1958-59 fiscal period.

The department said $3.7 million was received in soft drink taxes during 1959-60. This compared to $3.5 million in the previous fiscal year.

Eighteen Nursing Homes May Lose W.Va. Licenses

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A controversial rule placed in effect a year ago apparently will cause 18 West Virginia privately operated nursing homes to cease operations in the near future.

State Fire Marshal Carl E. Weimer said Wednesday he had withheld approval for new state licenses to the homes because they had failed to commence installation of automatic sprinkler systems designed to eliminate fire hazards.

Weimer said he had certified 36 other homes to the State Department of Health for licenses. The department, after approval by Weimer's office and local health authorities, issues licenses under which the homes operate.

The sprinkler rule was placed into effect July 1 a year ago but Weimer said he did not intend for it to be a hardship on the homes and gave them a full year to comply.

The 18 homes which face loss of their licenses are:

Haught Memorial Home, Kelley's Nursing Home, The Ohio Valley Nursing & Rest Home, and Tipton Rest Home, all of Parkersburg; Alcan Center, Charleston; Britton Rest Home, West Union.

Caldwell Nursing Home, Minden, Fayette County, Christian Home for Elderly People, Fayetteville; East Fairmont Nursing Home, Fairmont; Goff's Rest Home, St. Albans.

Lewis Wetzel Nursing Home, New Martinsville; Lida Clark Nursing Home, Clarksburg; Lostia's Nursing Home, Lumberport; Magnolia Rest Home, Matewan.

Riverview Rest Home, Vienna, Wood County; Rugby Home, Huntington, Shepherd Nursing Home, Ellenboro, Ritchie County and Turner's Rest Home, Weston.

Coal Production Shows Increase

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — Latest statistics show that West Virginia's coal production is running noticeably ahead of last year, State Mines Chief Crawford Wilson said Tuesday.

Wilson placed production for the first five months at 51,769,158 compared to 47,689,864 for the corresponding period in 1959.

However, the May production of 10,014,343 tons was slightly below 10,630,741 tons produced in the same month last year.

A total of 38,141 miners were employed in West Virginia mines in May, also slightly below the 40,097 in May, 1959.

Wilson said 58 mine fatalities were recorded for the first five months of this year, this included 28 in March when 18 died in the Holden 22 disaster. In 1959, the death toll was 42 in mining accidents through May.

PSC Continues Hearings In C&A Gas Co. Rate Case

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — The Public Service Commission Wednesday continued until July 20 further hearings on a $896,000 rate increase application by Cumberland & Allegheny Gas Co.

The continuance was ordered following testimony from James M. Honaker, PSC consultant. The utility serves some 16,000 customers in central West Virginia.

Honaker said he felt the company needed only a 6 per cent rate of return on its investment in West Virginia. C&A seeks a 6.8 per cent rate or return.

The consultant also was cross-examined by the utility, in regard to testimony in which he compared C & A's earnings with 16 other companies.

Honaker said C & A was well ranked in earnings when compared to the other companies.

However, the utility maintained such a comparision should not be made because some of the 16 companies are engaged in other business activities.

At the next hearing, which will probably conclude the case, Ross Robertson of the University of Indiana, another PSC witness, is scheduled to testify. The utility will also offer rebuttle testimony.

W. Va. Consuming More Soft Drinks

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — West Virginians apparently are smoking more cigarettes and consuming more soft drinks, State Tax Commissioner Don Carman said Wednesday.

Cigarette tax collections the past fiscal year totaled $9.5 million, or 3.9 per cent more than the $9.1 million taken in during the 1958-59 fiscal period.

The department said $3.7 million was received in soft drink taxes during 1959-60. This compared to $3.5 million in the previous fiscal year.

Polio Clinics Scheduled At Lonaconing

LONACONING—The Allegany County Health Department will sponsor a series of polio immunization clinics at the Lonaconing Health Center.

Dr. Ton Van Strien, county health officer, said that immunization will be administered from ages 4 to 40 years. He strongly urged the public to participate in the drive to stamp out polio.

Follow-up clinics will be held on Thursday, July 28, and Thursday, August 24, to complete the series and booster shots. Persons should seek an appointment with their family doctor or attend the clinic Thursday.

A number of things should be kept in the minds of the interested persons. Previous records of polio shots should be brought to the clinic so the public health nurse may determine what injection should be given. Children under 18 must be accompanied by an adult or have a written note from their parent or guardian. Persons who are ill or have a history of allergic reaction to injections should consult their family physician.

People from Midland, Lonaconing and Barton are urged to attend.

Eighteen Nursing Homes May Lose W.Va. Licenses

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A controversial rule placed in effect a year ago apparently will cause 18 West Virginia privately operated nursing homes to cease operations in the near future.

State Fire Marshal Carl E. Weimer said Wednesday he had withheld approval for new state licenses to the homes because they had failed to commence installation of automatic sprinkler systems designed to eliminate fire hazards.

Weimer said he had certified 36 other homes to the State Department of Health for licenses. The department, after approval by Weimer's office and local health authorities, issues licenses under which the homes operate.

The sprinkler rule was placed into effect July 1 a year ago but Weimer said he did not intend for it to be a hardship on the homes and gave them a full year to comply.

The 18 homes which face loss of their licenses are:

Haught Memorial Home, Kelley's Nursing Home, The Ohio Valley Nursing & Rest Home, and Tipton Rest Home, all of Parkersburg; Alcan Center, Charleston; Britton Rest Home, West Union.

Caldwell Nursing Home, Minden, Fayette County, Christian Home for Elderly People, Fayetteville; East Fairmont Nursing Home, Fairmont; Goff's Rest Home, St. Albans.

Lewis Wetzel Nursing Home, New Martinsville; Lida Clark Nursing Home, Clarksburg; Lostia's Nursing Home, Lumberport; Magnolia Rest Home, Matewan.

Riverview Rest Home, Vienna, Wood County; Rugby Home, Huntington, Shepherd Nursing Home, Ellenboro, Ritchie County and Turner's Rest Home, Weston.

Stock Market Suffers Third Straight Setback

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered its third successive setback Wednesday in the lightest trading since May 23.

Aircrafts and oils turned in the better gains, while the so-called bread-and-butter stocks — chemicals, steels, metals and motors—were mostly lower.

The decline, however, lacked the severity of the previous two setbacks. Trading slipped to 2,590,000 shares from 2,860,000 shares the day before.

A total of 1,192 issues appeared on the tape, 26 fewer than on Tuesday. Of these 526 declined, 47 to new lows, while 432 advanced, 23 to new highs.

Brokers attempting to explain the market's recent heaviness blamed it on international tensions.

They said the latest U.S., note to Russia charging that country shot an American plane down over international waters in a "reckless attempt to create an international incident" tended to keep traders edgy and the market off balance.

Industrial stocks closed at 632.11 off 2.01 in their average, bringing the total loss so far this week to 14.81 points. Rails eased in their average, while utilities finished firm.

Steels turned around after an early show of strength to feature losses of 2¼ in Lukens, which cut its dividend in half, and a point in Republic and Youngstown Sheet. U.S. Steel dropped ½ to 80⅞.

Ford, which boosted its dividend, finished unchanged after being up a point at its top. Mack Trucks lost 1¼. Chrysler and General Motors eased while American Motors firmed.

Oils were strong on balance with Anderson-Prichard up 3⅛, Richfield up 1¾ and Union Oil of California a point.

Minnesota Mining eased on Federal Trade Commission charges the company has violated the anti-trust laws by purchasing two competing distributors of electrical insulation products.

Stock prices gyrated irregularly in moderate dealings on the American Exchange.

Stock Market Suffers Third Straight Setback

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market suffered its third successive setback Wednesday in the lightest trading since May 23.

Aircrafts and oils turned in the better gains, while the so-called bread-and-butter stocks — chemicals, steels, metals and motors—were mostly lower.

The decline, however, lacked the severity of the previous two setbacks. Trading slipped to 2,590,000 shares from 2,860,000 shares the day before.

A total of 1,192 issues appeared on the tape, 26 fewer than on Tuesday. Of these 526 declined, 47 to new lows, while 432 advanced, 23 to new highs.

Brokers attempting to explain the market's recent heaviness blamed it on international tensions.

They said the latest U.S., note to Russia charging that country shot an American plane down over international waters in a "reckless attempt to create an international incident" tended to keep traders edgy and the market off balance.

Industrial stocks closed at 632.11 off 2.01 in their average, bringing the total loss so far this week to 14.81 points. Rails eased in their average, while utilities finished firm.

Steels turned around after an early show of strength to feature losses of 2¼ in Lukens, which cut its dividend in half, and a point in Republic and Youngstown Sheet. U.S. Steel dropped ½ to 80⅞.

Ford, which boosted its dividend, finished unchanged after being up a point at its top. Mack Trucks lost 1¼. Chrysler and General Motors eased while American Motors firmed.

Oils were strong on balance with Anderson-Pritchard up 3⅛, Richfield up 1¾ and Union Oil of California a point.

Minnesota Mining eased on Federal Trade Commission charges the company has violated the anti-trust laws by purchasing two competing distributors of electrical insulation products.

Stock prices gyrated irregularly in moderate dealings on the American Exchange.

SRC To Seek Bids On Road Job

Bids will be received by the State Roads Commission on August 2 for the improvement of U. S. Route 219 from Hoyes Road to McHenry in Garrett County.

The contract will call for grading, drainage, reconstruction, relocation, and surfacing of the highway. The contract covers 1.72 miles. Work will begin late this year. Completion is expected next year.

Modernization of Route 219 is a part of Maryland's five-year speed-up program on the state's primary highway system. Contracts from Hoyes Road to Accident and from Accident to Keyser's Ridge are included in the five-Year Program.

Brazil is the largest nation in South America in area and population.

Opening lead: Queen of ♦

When luck operates in be-half of a competitor he must be quick to take advantage of the break, as South did in today's hand.

South's jump to three spades has our indorsement. North's raise to four spades is sound. Though the combined holding presents only the most remote play for game, it may be shown that North's hand is a most unfortunate dummy. If it consisted of the ace of spades and the king of clubs, game would be a virtual laydown.

West led the queen of diamonds and the outlook was dismal indeed. The inevitable losers were two diamonds and one heart. And even though the club finesse might succeed, there still appeared to be a loser in that suit. The only hope lay in the heart suit and, remote as it was, it had to be tried. So South settled down to make wishes. He wished for 4-3 break in hearts. He wished further that East would have both the ace and king. And finally, to cap the climax, he wished for West to hold the ten of hearts.

That his wishes all came true is a tribute to the spirit of the fairy tale and testifies to the reward of virtue. But there is a practical touch to the anecdote. If he had not wished well he could not have succeeded.

Declarer won the opening lead with the ace and promptly led his singleton heart, playing the nine from the dummy. Fortunately this drove out a high honor.

The defenders cashed two diamonds and switched to a trump, which was won in dummy with the jack. Declarer then led the queen of hearts and ruffed away East's ace. Dummy was reentered with the ace of spades and the seven of clubs was discarded on the established jack of hearts. When the club finesse succeeded, he was home.

U. S. highway maintenance and construction costs have more than doubled since 1941.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Wheat gained small fractions, but other grain futures were steady to lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The July drummed lard contract, which expires Friday, climbed to another seasonal high. Prices fell under realizing sales near the close.

At the final bell, wheat was up ⅛ to ½; corn unchanged to off ⅛; oats off ¼ to ½; rye off ⅝ to 1 and soybeans off ½ to 1¼.

Reports that rain held back combining in Illinois and in the southwest helped to firm wheat futures. Most of the newly harvested wheat continued to move into the loan program.

Light hedge sales and hopes for a large pending export trade helped wheat. Commercial, commission houses and some millers also bought.

Corn held steady. Selling followed a break in soybean prices. Commercial houses wereon both sides of July. The Weather Bureau predicted below normal temperatures for the next five days, but only small moisture.

Rye futures weakened on reports that a new shipment had arrived from Canada.

An active selloff in soybeans came on the heels of early scattered selling and long liquidation. Prices fell more than a cent to erase most of the previous day's gains. Holland bought about 5,000 tons of beans.

Soybeans inspections for export last week amounted to 1,320,000 bushels, bringing the total since Oct. 1 to 114,261,000, compared with 90,928,000 a year ago.

Outside markets were mixed.

The Range:

	High	Low	Close
Wheat:
July	183⅜	182⅛	182⅜
September	186	185½	185⅝

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You frequently say in your column that a married woman need not put up with a man she no longer cares for. You phrase it this way: "Your husband has to support his children or go to jail."

By such advice you give the impression that when a wife gets bored, she can throw her husband out and collect support money. In other words, you encourage divorce as "the easy out."

In case you don't know it, Ann Landers, there are already too many man-hungry divorcees on the loose. You don't help the situation by painting glowing pictures of the split home. You do more harm than good and I wish you'd button your lip on this subject.

—A FOUR YEAR OBSERVER

DEAR OBSERVER: Anyone who has read this column for four years should know where I stand on divorce. If you can show me a single column that I wrote which advocates divorce I will buy you a new car. (Your choice).

It is the law that a man must support his children. Most states have closed a favorite loophole for irresponsible husbands who simply left the state to avoid paying support.

I do not believe that a woman should live with a man who abuses her and the children or beats her regularly, like a gong. In such cases, I recommend separate roofs and child support. This is not the same as divorce. In my book, marriage is forever.

DEAR ANN: I grew up with a girl I will call Wendy. To this day we are the dearest of friends. Our mothers were very close for many years.

Recently Wendy's mother said to me, "I never see your mother any more. I call on her but she doesn't call on me. I feel bad about losing her friendship and I wish you'd tell her."

I phoned Mom that night and told her what Wendy's mother said. This was her reply: "I can't tolerate that woman since she has become a grandmother. She talks of nothing but her grandchildren.

"She doesn't give a person a chance to sit down before she hauls out dozens of pictures. Then she starts with the anecdotes. I can't stand it."

Shall I tell Wendy to pass along the word? —CHARLOTTE

DEAR CHARLOTTE: Stay out of it. Let your mother pick her own friends. Your information would not be well received by either Wendy or her mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a girl who just turned 13. A few months ago I was in seventh heaven and now I am in heartbreak hotel. I'm crazy about a boy who used to like me. I know it's my fault that he doesn't care for me anymore. Several months back he threw snow on me after a big dance. I slapped him across the face in front of a lot of kids. I know it was the wrong thing to do because he was just being playful.

I have tried to apologize but he still won't be friendly. I've tried everything I know of to get him back but nothing works. Please help me, Ann. —BLUE LADY

DEAR LADY: Age 13 and already a permanent resident of "Heartbreak Hotel?" Well!!!

Kids of 12 SHOULD be throwing snowballs at each other and not going to dances. You behaved childishly because this is the way children behave. Slow down.

(P. S. Where's your mother, anyway?)

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Wheat gained small fractions, but other grain futures were steady to lower Wednesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The July drummed lard contract, which expires Friday, climbed to another seasonal high. Prices fell under realizing sales near the close.

At the final bell, wheat was up ⅛ to ⅜; corn unchanged to off ⅛; oats off ¼ to ½; rye off ⅜ to 1 and soybeans off ½ to 1¼.

Reports that rain held back combining in Illinois and in the southwest helped to firm wheat futures. Most of the newly harvested wheat continued to move into the loan program.

Light hedge sales and hopes for a large pending export trade helped wheat. Commercial, commission houses and some millers also bought.

Corn held steady. Selling followed a break in soybean prices. Commercial houses wereon both sides of July. The Weather Bureau predicted below normal temperatures for the next five days, but only small moisture.

Oats eased in a mixed and light commission house trade. Cash interests bought July and sold September.

Rye futures weakened on reports that a new shipment had arrived from Canada.

An active selloff in soybeans came on the heels of early scattered selling and long liquidation. Prices fell more than a cent to erase most of the previous day's gains. Holland bought about 5,000 tons of beans.

Soybeans inspections for export last week amounted to 1,320,000 bushels, bringing the total since Oct. 1 to 114,261,000, compared with 90,938,000 a year ago.

Outside markets were mixed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You frequently say in your column that a married woman need not put up with a man she no longer cares for. You phrase it this way: "Your husband has to support his children or go to jail."

By such advice you give the impression that when a wife gets bored, she can throw her husband out and collect support money. In other words, you encourage divorce as "the easy out."

In case you don't know it, Ann Landers, there are already too many man-hungry divorcees on the loose. You don't help the situation by painting glowing pictures of the split home. You do more harm than good and I wish you'd button your lip on this subject.

—A FOUR YEAR OBSERVER

DEAR OBSERVER: Anyone who has read this column for four years should know where I stand on divorce. If you can show me a single column that I wrote which advocates divorce I will buy you a new car. (Your choice).

It is the law that a man must support his children. Most states have closed a favorite loophole for irresponsible husbands who simply left the state to avoid paying support.

I do not believe that a woman should live with a man who abuses her and the children or beats her regularly, like a gong. In such cases, I recommend separate roofs and child support. This is not the same as divorce. In my book, marriage is forever.

DEAR ANN: I grew up with a girl I will call Wendy. To this day we are the dearest of friends. Our mothers were very close for many years.

Recently Wendy's mother said to me, "I never see your mother any more. I call on her but she doesn't call on me. I feel bad about losing her friendship and I wish you'd tell her."

I phoned Mom that night and told her what Wendy's mother said. This was her reply: "I can't tolerate that woman since she has become a grandmother. She talks of nothing but her grandchildren.

"She doesn't give a person a chance to sit down before she hauls out dozens of pictures. Then she starts with the anecdotes. I can't stand it."

Shall I tell Wendy to pass along the word? —CHARLOTTE

DEAR CHARLOTTE: Stay out of it. Let your mother pick her own friends. Your information would not be well received by either Wendy or her mother.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a girl who just turned 13. A few months ago I was in seventh heaven and now I am in heartbreak hotel.

I'm crazy about a boy who used to like me. I know it's my fault that he doesn't care for me anymore. Several months back he threw snow on me after a big dance. I slapped him across the face in front of a lot of kids. I know it was the wrong thing to do because he was just being playful.

I have tried to apologize but he still won't be friendly. I've tried everything I know of to get him back but nothing works. Please help me, Ann. —BLUE LADY

DEAR LADY: Age 13 and already a permanent resident of "Heartbreak Hotel?" Well!!!

Kids of 12 SHOULD be throwing snowballs at each other and not going to dances. You behaved childishly because this is the way children behave. Slow down.

(P. S. Where's your mother, anyway?)

To learn the difference between a marriage that "settles down" and one that "gets dull," send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "What To Expect From Marriage," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Driver Faces Three Charges After Crash

Lewis To Get Hearing Today

Thomas Lewis Jr., 35, of Wiley Ford, is scheduled to appear in Trial Magistrate's Court today at 1:30 p.m. to face charges of three motor vehicle violations in connection with a three-car accident Tuesday on Oldtown Road in which a local businessman and his wife were injured.

The charges were preferred against Lewis by Tfc. Willis Foreman who investigated the accident about a mile west of Oldtown on Maryland Route 51.

Lewis is being charged with failure to remain at the scene of an accident, driving on revoked licenses, and operating a vehicle in a reckless manner.

At the same time today John Snyder, 49, of Akron, Ohio, owner of the auto, will face a hearing on a charge of allowing an unauthorized person to operate his car.

Injured in the accident were Mrs. Hazel Shinnamon, 46, of LaVale, who sustained severe lacerations of her right arm and hand and her husband, Louis V. Shinnamon, who suffered a number of bruises and abrasions and was treated at Memorial Hospital where his wife underwent surgery.

A third car was driven by Harold M. Shrout, 31, of Oldtown who was traveling in the direction of Cumberland. As Lewis, traveling at an apparent high rate of speed, attempted to pass Shinnamon going east, he saw the oncoming Shrout car and struck the Shinnamon car, flipping it over on its top.

Local Marine Reserve Unit In Training

The 43d Rifle Company, local Marine Corps Reserve unit, is midway through the first of two weeks of summer training at Parris Island, S. C.

While at Parris Island, the Cumberland Marines will progress through two weeks of intensive training which will include familiarization firing of weapons, judo training and problems involving squad, platoon and company tactics.

Conditioning hikes are part of the syllabus. Instruction includes the use of the basic infantry weapons such as the hand grenade, automatic rifle, light machine gun, .45 caliber pistol and 3.5-inch rocket launcher.

A portion of the training schedule is devoted to the principles of camouflage, individual cover in daylight and in darkness, Marine Corps drill, scouting and patrolling, atomic biological-chemical warfare, and field sanitation.

In addition to parade and guard mount practice, the Marines will take part in a simulated assault on a fortified position, a demonstration designed to encompass all phases of their two weeks training.

The rifle company has been afforded periods of holiday routine at the mid-point of their training tour, Saturday, July 16, and Sunday, July 17.

Additional training, on an on-the-job basis, will be offered certain Reserve Marines in driver training, which will be provided by the depot motor transport officer; security by the depot provost marshal; special atomic-biological-chemical training, and at the Non-Commissioned Officers' School, and supply and personnel administration schools.

Training officially ends July 22 when the Cumberland Marines will pack and leave Parris Island for home.

Judge Levies Court Costs

When a driver appealing a motor vehicle conviction failed to appear in Allegany County Circuit Court yesterday, Chief Judge Morgan Harris affirmed the judgment of the trial magistrate and added on Circuit Court costs.

Alvin Green Moore of 333 Virginia Avenue, was arrested here May 11 by City Police Officer James Stewart who charged the man with exceeding the 25-mile-per-hour speed limit in a residential zone.

Trial Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found the man guilty and fined him $10 and $1.45 court costs. He appealed to the higher court.

When Moore failed to appear yesterday, Judge Harris affirmed the judgment of the lower court and tacked on Circuit Court costs of $13.75. Moore is reported to be in the Baltimore area.

Home Permits Issued Here

Two additional dwelling permits have been issued at the Allegany County Court House.

James Stevenson, clerk of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, said yesterday a dwelling permit has been issued to Ona M. Kile, of RD 3, Keyser, who plans to construct a 29 by 46 foot frame home at a cost of about $9,500.

The dwelling which will be located about 300 yards from U. S. Route 220 on McCoole Hill will have a concrete block foundation, composition roof and cellar.

James N. Williams, of RD 2, Flintstone, was issued a permit to build a 24.8 by 36.8 foot frame dwelling at a cost of about $5,000.

It will have aluminum and frame siding, shingle roof and a cellar. The sewage permit for the foundation was obtained in 1959 and the foundation has been completed.

Fresh Air Kids Slated To Arrive By Train Today

Fifteen local and area families will be host to some 20 Fresh Air Kids who will be arriving here late this afternoon on B&O Train No. 9 which arrives in Queen City station about 6 o'clock.

Herman J. Grabenstein, 842 Gephart Drive, chairman of the project sponsored again this year by the Parent-Teachers Association of SS. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church said the following families have invited children back to their homes:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruppert, 453 Waverly Terrace, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gellner, 812 Columbia Avenue, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan S. Riley, 71 Knobley Street, Ridgeley, a boy and a girl; Mr. and Mrs. John Dougherty, RFD 1, Box 727, city, a boy, and Mr. and Mrs. Myron J. Livengood, Pinto, a girl.

Those families inviting youngsters of Chinese descent to their homes for the first time are Dr and Mrs. Carlton Brinsfield, 1825 Bedford Street, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Thomas, 437 Walnut Street, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Delton Johnson, 145 Cresap Drive, Bowling Green, a boy; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Leggett, Flintstone, a boy; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zimmerman, 39 Third Avenue, Ridgeley, a boy and girl; Mr. and Mrs. George W. The youngsters range in age from five to 12 years and average about 10, according to Mr. Grabenstein, who said they are members of the Church of the Transfiguration parish in New York City and most of them are from the Kung Wah Chinese School of the parish.

The program is nearly a century old, being a principal part of the Herald-Tribune Fresh Air Fund, a charitable organization which depends on voluntary contributions from the public.

Instrumental in getting the children here was Rev. John D. Moore, local Maryknoll priest and former assistant in Chinese work at the New York parish who is now stationed in the Orient.

The SS. Peter and Paul PTA has been sponsoring the project since 1954.

West Virginia Delegate Poll Is Prevented

By LOUIS G. PANOS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A scheduled poll of West Virginia delegates on their presidential preference failed to come off at a caucus Wednesday.

Backers of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson at the Democratic convention, battling feverishly against prospects of a first-ballot victory for Sen. John F. Kennedy, regarded the absence of a poll as a tactical victory.

But delegation Chairman Ward Wylie said "it doesn't mean anything."

Wylie, a Kennedy man, said the nearly unanimous caucus vote to postpone a poll was no reason for any change in his early estimate that the Massachusetts senator would win 19½ of the state's 25 votes on the initial roll call.

Former Rep. Hobert H. Mollohan acknowledged that he and other Johnson supporters argued for a postponement of the poll.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, also for Johnson, said he hoped the move to put off a poll of the delegation would help sidetrack the Kennedy express.

Johnson backers claimed at least four delegates still were undecided before arriving at the convention hall for the first ballot. The Johnson supporters added that five to seven West Virginians favored the Texas senator.

Johnson made a personal visit to the delegation before noon to make a last-ditch appeal for support.

The caucus was held at the Commodore Hotel, where the delegation is staying, after a buffet luncheon given by Sen. Jennings Randolph for about 90 members, delegates and friends of the delegates.

Md. Delegates Hear No Pleas From Hopefuls

Already Committed To Back Kennedy

By LOUIS G. PANOS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 24-vote Maryland delegation, committed to Sen. John F. Kennedy, eagerly awaited balloting for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday night.

Gov. J. Millard Tawes, chairman, did not attend opening activities of the nominating session of the party's national convention.

But Thomas B. Finan, state party chairman, said the governor planned to arrive at the massive sports arena in time for the initial roll call.

Finan said Tawes, recovering from a June 9 abdominal operation, planned to rest until then and view the early proceedings on television in his hotel suite.

Finan said no opponents of the front-running Kennedy had talked with Tawes during the day.

The governor reported Tuesday night that lieutenants of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai Stevenson had asked him to meet with these presidential hopefuls.

The governor said he replied courteously to these overtures without encouraging further moves toward setting up meetings with Johnson or Stevenson.

Tawes said nothing more was heard from these camps and he assumed they were concentrating on corralling the few remaining uncommitted votes among other delegations.

"That's just what I assume," said Tawes, "and I'd just as soon have it that way. Our position for Kennedy is known and I don't see how we can go around at this time meeting with other candidates or doing anything else which might be misinterpreted as a weakening of our commitment."

Tawes left his hotel quarters long enough earlier in the day to have lunch with a group including Cyrus Eaton, industrialist and railroad magnate and father-in-law of Maryland Democratic Treasurer David Hume.

They were reported to have discussed the possible effects on the Port of Baltimore of proposed mergers involving the Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, and New York Central railroads.

The larger group, aided by some Cumberland adult musicians, also will present two concerts. The first will be at the Celanese pool at 7 p. m. Thursday, July 21. The second will be at the Constitution Park program on July 24. Varied selections, suitable for the "concert in the park," will be played.

This July 24 event will be the last public appearance with the group of Dr. Frank E. Gamble, founder and director. Dr. Gamble will leave shortly to assume a post at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Two Local Youths Leave Here Today For Hiking Tour Of C. & O. Canal

Two local youths leave here this morning for a hike along the entire length of the historic Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

And the lads expect to complete the 184-mile trek in seven days, one day less than was taken on the original C & O Canal hike led by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in 1954.

The hikers are J. Bradley Hughes, son of Mrs. Betty Hughes, 393½ McMullen Highway, and Larry Brock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock, LaVale Court.

The 15-year-old lads spent last night in an office in the Western Maryland Railway station and plan to begin their hike at the Howard Street terminal of the canal at 6:30 a .m.

Young Brock will be making his first C & O Canal tour but his companion, along with Mark Lazarus III, completed a bicycle trip along the entire route of the waterway in 4½ days last summer.

Each hiker will be carrying a sleeping bag, a shelter half, and will be toting about 25 pounds of equipment.

They plan to save some weight by buying their food on the route and cooking it at night.

Young Hughes reported they plan to hike 34 miles today, to Lock 60 just beyond Paw Paw, W. Va. Friday's stint will take them past Hancock and they plan to camp near Williamsport on Saturday.

The lads plan to set a moderate pace but to stretch out each day's hike to about 13 hours.

Plans call for ending the hike at tidewater in Georgetown next Wednesday.

When they reach Washington, they plan to make their first stop at the office of Rep. John R. Foley, where they are mailing a change of clothes.

The hikers plan to spend four days in Washington, seeing the attractions of the Washington Metropolitan area.

The young hikers completed preparations for the hike yesterday when they bought brand new shoes for the trek. They are carrying pairs of worn shoes, however, in case the new boots prove hard to break in.

They may be joined for part of the trip by Edwin M. Dale, superintendent of the C & O National Historical Park project.

Driver Faces Three Charges After Crash

Lewis To Get Hearing Today

Thomas Lewis Jr., 35, of Wiley Ford, is scheduled to appear in Trial Magistrate's Court today at 1:30 p.m. to face charges of three motor vehicle violations in connection with a three-car accident Tuesday on Oldtown Road in which a local businessman and his wife were injured.

The charges were preferred against Lewis by Tfc. Willis Foreman who investigated the accident about a mile west of Oldtown on Maryland Route 51.

Lewis is being charged with failure to remain at the scene of an accident, driving on revoked licenses, and operating a vehicle in a reckless manner.

At the same time today John Snyder, 49, of Akron, Ohio, owner of the auto, will face a hearing on a charge of allowing an unauthorized person to operate his car.

Injured in the accident were Mrs. Hazel Shinnamon, 46, of LaVale, who sustained severe lacerations of her right arm and hand and her husband, Louis V. Shinnamon, who suffered a number of bruises and abrasions and was treated at Memorial Hospital where his wife underwent surgery.

A third car was driven by Harold M. Shrout, 31, of Oldtown who was traveling in the direction of Cumberland. As Lewis, traveling at an apparent high rate of speed, attempted to pass Shinnamon going east, he saw the oncoming Shrout car and struck the Shinnamon car, flipping it over on its top.

The 43d Rifle Company, local Marine Corps Reserve unit, is midway through the first of two weeks of summer training at Parris Island, S. C.

While at Parris Island, the Cumberland Marines will progress through two weeks of intensive training which will include familiarization firing of weapons, judo training and problems involving squad, platoon and company tactics.

In addition to parade and guard mount practice, the Marines will take part in a simulated assault on a fortified position, a demonstration designed to encompass all phases of their two weeks training.

The rifle company has been afforded periods of holiday routine at the mid-point of their training tour, Saturday, July 16, and Sunday, July 17.

Additional training, on an on-the-job basis, will be offered certain Reserve Marines in driver training, which will be provided by the depot motor transport officer; security by the depot provost marshal; special atomic-biological-chemical training, and at the Non-Commissioned Officers' School, and supply and personnel administration schools.

Trial Magistrate Paul W. Barnett found the man guilty and fined him $10 and $1.45 court costs. He appealed to the higher court.

When Moore failed to appear yesterday, Judge Harris affirmed the judgment of the lower court and tacked on Circuit Court costs of $13.75. Moore is reported to be in the Baltimore area.

Fresh Air Kids Slated To Arrive By Train Today

Fifteen local and area families will be host to some 20 Fresh Air Kids who will be arriving here late this afternoon on B&O Train No. 9 which arrives in Queen City station about 6 o'clock.

Herman J. Grabenstein, 842 Gephart Drive, chairman of the project sponsored again this year by the Parent-Teachers Association of SS. Peter and Paul's Catholic Church said the following families have invited children back to their homes:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ruppert, 453 Waverly Terrace, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gellner, 812 Columbia Avenue, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan S. Riley, 71 Knobley Street, Ridgeley, a boy and a girl; Mr. and Mrs. John Dougherty, RFD 1, Box 727, city, a boy, and Mr. and Mrs. Myron J. Livengood, Pinto, a girl.

Those families inviting youngsters of Chinese descent to their homes for the first time are Dr. and Mrs. Carlton Brinsfield, 1825 Bedford Street, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Thomas, 437 Walnut Street, a girl; Mr. and Mrs. Delton Johnson, 145 Cresap Drive, Bowling Green, a boy; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Leggett, Flintstone, a boy; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zimmerman, 39 Third Avenue, Ridgeley, a boy and girl; Mr. and Mrs. George W. The youngsters range in age from five to 12 years and average about 10, according to Mr. Grabenstein, who said they are members of the Church of the Transfiguration parish in New York City and most of them are from the Kung Wah Chinese School of the parish.

The program is nearly a century old, being a principal part of the Herald-Tribune Fresh Air Fund, a charitable organization which depends on voluntary contributions from the public.

The children's visit to Cumberland and area gives them a chance to get away from the heat and bustle of New York City and enjoy a vacation out in the open.

Instrumental in getting the children here was Rev. John D. Moore, local Maryknoll priest and former assistant in Chinese work at the New York parish who is now stationed in the Orient.

The SS. Peter and Paul PTA has been sponsoring the project since 1954.

West Virginia Delegate Poll Is Prevented

By LOUIS G. PANOS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A scheduled poll of West Virginia delegates on their presidential preference failed to come off at a caucus Wednesday.

Backers of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson at the Democratic convention, battling feverishly against prospects of a first-ballot victory for Sen. John F. Kennedy, regarded the absence of a poll as a tactical victory.

But delegation Chairman Ward Wylie said "it doesn't mean anything."

Wylie, a Kennedy man, said the nearly unanimous caucus vote to postpone a poll was no reason for any change in his early estimate that the Massachusetts senator would win 19½ of the state's 25 votes on the initial roll call.

Former Rep. Hobert H. Mollohan acknowledged that he and other Johnson supporters argued for a postponement of the poll.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, also for Johnson, said he hoped the move to put off a poll of the delegation would help sidetrack the Kennedy express.

Johnson backers claimed at least four delegates still were undecided before arriving at the convention hall for the first ballot. The Johnson supporters added that five to seven West Virginians favored the Texas senator.

Johnson made a personal visit to the delegation before noon to make a last-ditch appeal for support.

The caucus was held at the Commodore Hotel, where the delegation is staying, after a buffet luncheon given by Sen. Jennings Randolph for about 90 members, delegates and friends of the delegates.

Md. Delegates Hear No Pleas From Hopefuls

Already Committed To Back Kennedy

By LOUIS G. PANOS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The 24-vote Maryland delegation, committed to Sen. John F. Kennedy, eagerly awaited balloting for the Democratic presidential nomination Wednesday night.

Gov. J. Millard Tawes, chairman, did not attend opening activities of the nominating session of the party's national convention.

But Thomas B. Finan, state party chairman, said the governor planned to arrive at the massive sports arena in time for the initial roll call.

Finan said Tawes, recovering from a June 9 abdominal operation, planned to rest until then and view the early proceedings on television in his hotel suite.

Finan said no opponents of the front-running Kennedy had talked with Tawes during the day.

The governor reported Tuesday night that lieutenants of Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson and Adlai Stevenson had asked him to meet with these presidential hopefuls.

The governor said he replied courteously to these overtures without encouraging further moves toward setting up meetings with Johnson or Stevenson.

Tawes said nothing more was heard from these camps and he assumed they were concentrating on corralling the few remaining uncommitted votes among other delegations.

"That's just what I assume," said Tawes, "and I'd just as soon have it that way. Our position for Kennedy is known and I don't see how we can go around at this time meeting with other candidates or doing anything else which might be misinterpreted as a weakening of our commitment."

Tawes left his hotel quarters long enough earlier in the day to have lunch with a group including Cyrus Eaton, industrialist and railroad magnate and father-in-law of Maryland Democratic Treasurer David Hume.

They were reported to have discussed the possible effects on the Port of Baltimore of proposed mergers involving the Baltimore & Ohio, Chesapeake & Ohio, and New York Central railroads.

The larger group, aided by some Cumberland adult musicians, also will present two concerts. The first will be at the Celanese pool at 7 p. m. Thursday, July 21. The second will be at the Constitution Park program on July 24. Varied selections, suitable for the "concert in the park," will be played.

This July 24 event will be the last public appearance with the group of Dr. Frank E. Gamble, founder and director. Dr. Gamble will leave shortly to assume a post at the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

Two Local Youths Leave Here Today For Hiking Tour Of C. & O. Canal

Two local youths leave here this morning for a hike along the entire length of the historic Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.

And the lads expect to complete the 184-mile trek in seven days, one day less than was taken on the original C & O Canal hike led by Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in 1954.

The hikers are J. Bradley Hughes, son of Mrs. Betty Hughes, 393½ McMullen Highway, and Larry Brock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock, LaVale Court.

The 15-year-old lads spent last night in an office in the Western Maryland Railway station and plan to begin their hike at the Howard Street terminal of the canal at 6:30 a .m.

Young Brock will be making his first C & O Canal tour but his companion, along with Mark Lazarus III, completed a bicycle trip along the entire route of the waterway in 4½ days last summer.

Each hiker will be carrying a sleeping bag, a shelter half, and will be toting about 25 pounds of equipment.

They plan to save some weight by buying their food on the route and cooking it at night.

Young Hughes reported they plan to hike 34 miles today, to Lock 60 just beyond Paw Paw, W. Va. Friday's stint will take them past Hancock and they plan to camp near Williamsport on Saturday.

The lads plan to set a moderate pace but to stretch out each day's hike to about 13 hours.

Plans call for ending the hike at tidewater in Georgetown next Wednesday.

When they reach Washington, they plan to make their first stop at the office of Rep. John R. Foley, where they are mailing a change of clothes.

The hikers plan to spend four days in Washington, seeing the attractions of the Washington Metropolitan area.

The young hikers completed preparations for the hike yesterday when they bought brand new shoes for the trek. They are carrying pairs of worn shoes, however, in case the new boots prove hard to break in.

They may be joined for part of the trip by Edwin M. Dale, superintendent of the C & O National Historical Park project.

Young Hughes was one of the younger hikers who participated in the sixth anniversary hike and reunion of the Justice Douglas C & O Canal Hike here early in May.
